At Lebanon Fair Holstein Show

Myerstown youth notches dairy win

BY DONNA McCONAUGHEY
LEBANON — ELCO High School junior Dale Weaver of Myerstown captured Grand Champion honors with senior 2-year-old Lime Rock First Sharon during the Open Dairy Show at the Lebanon Fair, Thursday.

This Keystone First Jaycee daughter, bred by Dale's grandfather, the late Hubert S. Miller, also earned him the title of Reserve Champion in the FFA Competition.

In the open Holstein competition, Reserve Champion honors went to Fanny EM Ivan-OC shown by Daryl Balmer of Lebanon. This 3-year-old, bred by Ellis Myer of Annville, is one of seven head of registered Holsteins owned by Daryl.

A recent graduate of Annville-Cleona High School, Daryl houses his cattle at the Kenneth Sellers farm where he has been employed for the past six years. Daryl's prize-winner placed second as a senior 2-year-old at the 1982 Farm Show and has just completed an 18,000 pound lactation with a 4 percent test.

School lunch program rescue begins

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN
WASHINGTON, D.C. — A dual agricultural stake — both humanitarian and economic — is emerging in current efforts in the nation's capital to rescue the school lunch program from President Reagan's Federalism.

A resolution introduced in the House of Representatives to keep the school lunch program under federal responsibility is gaining momentum and support.

House Concurrent Resolution 384 is in answer to the Administration's proposed Federalism program in which responsibility, including financial, for school lunches would be turned back to the individual states.

The resolution has been introduced by Congressman William F. Goodling (R-Pa.), of the 19th District of York, Adams and Cumberland Counties, and Carl D. Perkins (D-Ky.), chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor.

Rep. Goodling is the ranking GOP member of the Subcommittee on Elementary, Secondary and Vocational Education.

The bi-partisan resolution has picked up some 26 co-sponsors in the past couple of weeks since introduction.

Hearings on the resolution have been scheduled for Sept. 21. While the resolution doesn't carry the weight of law, its outcome will serve as a guide for further Administration efforts to include school lunches in the Federalism turnback to the states.

In introducing the resolution, Congressman Goodling said:

"A child's nutritional needs do not vary from state to state.

"However, the Administration's plan doesn't recognize that a child residing in a state with a low tax base is less likely to receive a nutritionally adequate diet than a child whose parents reside in a state with a higher or more favorable tax base."

Among agricultural organizations with a vital interest in supporting passage of the resolution are the various commodity groups, such as the National Milk Producers and the United Egg Producers.

For these commodity groups and the segments of agriculture they represent, the school lunch program represents not only an equal nutritional responsibility to all of the nation's youth, but an important market, too.

Lancaster Holstein triumphs

Donald Hostetter, left, of Parkesburg repeated his 1981 performance and captured both the Premier Breeder and Exhibitor banners, Monday night at this year's Eastern Pennsylvania Championship Holstein Show at Kutztown. Joining Hostetter are show judge Neil Bowen, center, of Wellsboro and Harvey W. Stoltzfus, Morgantown, show chairman and runner-up for the banners. Get complete details of the show and its new grand champion, a Lancaster County black and white, on page C2.

Ag Progress is little more than a week away, and Lancaster Farming is preparing a special issue to honor the annual event, coming Aug. 21. Inside this issue will be dates, places and times of special events so you won't miss what you want to see, and an exhibitor's list and a map so you can talk with the experts on the latest trends in farming. Also featured will be stories on several demonstrations and daily events, as well as scenes from last year's record-breaking affair. But take note, advertising deadline for this issue is this Monday, Aug. 16!

NMPF plan enters House-Senate talks

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Milk Producers' Federation Dairy Stabilization plan met with approval, Tuesday, during U.S. House budget talks and has moved into the Senate-House Conference Committee for further deliberation, said NMPF spokesperson Doni Dondero.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Senate twice rejected a proposed amendment, this week, which would have lowered the $13.10 dairy support price by 50 cents. The defeated amendment was proposed by Florida Senator Paula Hawkins.

Instead, the Senate Agriculture Committee has agreed to the $13.10 price in their budget but is expected to resume dairy legislation talks in January, said Hawkins' aide Mary Kenkel.

Members of the House and Senate met Thursday afternoon to discuss each other's budget version. At press time, the Conference Committee was still in session.

In other legislative action, the U.S. House ag committee has voted to require the Reagan Administration to boost price support loan rates for corn by five percent if the administration continues to refuse to negotiate a "long term" grain sales agreement with the Soviet Union.

The action came in a 37-2 vote to approve an emergency farm aid package drafted by a bi-partisan coalition of farm state legislators.

Tom Harkin (D-Ia.), who participated in the coalition noted that the action "is a clear message from the ag committee to the Administration that farmers should not be asked to pay the price for this Administration's eagerness to use food as a foreign policy weapon."

Closer to home, the wheels have begun turning for the commonwealth's proposed higher standards milk and voluntary promotion program. The ideas were introduced in a meeting of dairy leaders, this summer, which followed on the heels of the defeated milk referendum.

"We are now in the process of establishing two committees,"

LANCASTER — Will Lancaster hog prices break the magic $70.00 barrier this week?

Well, there's speculation that they may just do that for the first time this week after nudging the 70.00 mark and setting a new price record last Saturday.

A few U.S. #1's sold for $68.00-$69.00 a hundredweight on Saturday, topping the old high of 68.00 at the Stockyards.

Although prices didn't reach that level during the week at the various Lancaster County auctions, they held firm in the mid-60's. This firmness gave rise to speculation that the $70.00 barrier may finally be broken.

In all, 1070 head were sold last Saturday, Aug. 7, at the Stockyards.

The report as listed by the auction includes:

U.S. #1, 210-235 lbs. 65.00-67.50; some from 68.00-69.00.

U.S. 1 & 2, 210-245 lbs. 64.00-64.85. U.S. 2 & 3, 210-255 lbs. 63.50-64.50. Lightweights 195-210 lbs. 60.00-63.50.

Sows, 350 lbs. and up 52.00-55.75. Boars, 200-300 lbs. 55.50-57.75; 300 lbs. and up 45.00-47.25.

Moyer's DEKALB

Discriminating Poultryman

Brown egg layers used to be only economically housed in litter-floor houses. The DeKalb Warren Sex Sal-Link has broken through that tradition of discrimination. They are excellent producers in cage operations as well.

Whether in floor or cage houses, brown or white egg layers, Moyer's DeKalb offers:

Is Your Layer Program Meeting Today's Market Conditions?

At Pennfield, we have the program you need to meet those conditions, and to achieve the best return in a tough market. Because, unlike many feed companies, we design a total program specifically tailored to your birds' needs - a program that can improve your profits by reducing expenses, increasing production, or both.

For example, we can show you how using a higher density feed could mean using less feed with no loss in production. And that means more eggs for less money.

But we know there's a lot more to layer production than choosing the right feed. Factors like good sound financing. The right housing and equipment for your layers. Good healthy pullets. And expert on-farm management. Pennfield's program takes all these things into consideration.

Add to that our highly trained sales and service staff, our technical service department and local laboratory, our dependable delivery service - and you've got everything you need for top performance from your flock.

Pennfield's layer program will help you reduce expenses and maximize returns. In today's economy, that's more important than ever.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

AUG. 16-22, 1982
Torrid — some say horrid.

Cat nights begin this week. Blondin crossed Niagara Falls on a tightrope Aug. 17, 1859. . . New moon Aug. 18 (Wed). . . Average length of days for the week, 13 hours, 45 minutes. . . This week in 1920, 19th Amendment gave women right to vote. . . Hawaii admitted to Union Aug. 21, 1959. . . There is no one luckier than he who thinks himself so.

Ask the Old Farmer: What's the origin of the index finger movements, similar to stick whittling, which accompany the admonition, "Shame, shame?" D.R., Merrick, N.Y.

It's all that remains of the very ancient practice of washing the hands to remove feelings of guilt.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

Help a young farmer, junk your baler

I hear it all the time — at meetings, from friends, and frustrated young farmers. It seems to be universally accepted that it is next to impossible for a young couple or person to get started in farming from scratch these days.

I would agree that it's difficult. But impossible? ... Never.

I don't go along with the claims that the only way a young farmer can get started in today's economy is by inheriting a farm or marrying the farmer's son or daughter. Granted, that may be the easiest way, but it's also the most morbid and the worst possible reason for getting married.

With today's high costs, it takes considerably more money to become a tiller of the land. There's little margin for error. But is that so different than when farmers were getting started in the early 1900s? By comparison, the prices paid for farms back then were cheap, and so were the prices paid for farm products, too.

Some statisticians say that it's proportionally tougher to become a farmer in the 1980s, but I contend that where there's a will, there also is a way.

Rather than going into farming feet first, with no other source of income, more farmers are getting their feet wet in this high-risk industry by supporting their mistakes with off-farm incomes.

These "part-time" farmers (which I suspect work twice as hard at two jobs than some full-time farmers do at one) have been the scapegoat for much criticism recently. During the past two years, they've been blamed for everything from a corn and soybean surplus to the oversupply of pigs.

Even the established farmers had to start somewhere — and these "future" farmers must too. They've got to start small — acreage and operation-wise — to keep their heads financially above water. So their overall impact on the farm market is relatively insignificant.

But starting small also carries some risk for these part-time farmers when it comes time to file their annual income tax forms. Unfortunately, the Internal Revenue Service tends to look skeptically at new farmers, preferring to believe the farm is a tax shelter rather than a growing business.

Maybe U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block could have a talk with the IRS and convince them to give young farmers a break — he might have better luck there than he did with Farmers Home Administration.

If everyone is as concerned about the ability of young people to get started in farming as they say they are, then I suggest that farmers organize a "graveyard" for old farm machinery (perhaps a project for the USDA's small farmer committees). That's where all the antiquated, worn-out implements would be laid to rest.

Then, when young farmers are in need of a helping hand, a visit to the "ag cemetery" will arm them (free of charge) with the parts they need to carry on.

Let's face it, almost everybody who starts farming in the 1980s has little choice but to drive second-hand tractors that probably date back to the early 1950s. The balers they're using to gather their livestock's winter food supply are most like that of the 1940's vintage.

What happens when parts to these "collector items" go bad? Does the young farmer junk the entire machine for lack of one minor part?

Unfortunately, young farmers readily find themselves at the mercy of equipment dealers who would rather sell them a brand, spanking new baler than the parts for older models. In some cases, the machinery manufacturer shares these same sentiments and labels the oldtimers obsolete — discarding the part molds and striking them from their books.

There should be an understood rule that no piece of farm machinery can be stamped "outdated" until the last one bites the dust, or until all the parts are stripped from the graveyard "mechanical corpses."

Want to really welcome a young farmer into agriculture? Then remember the somewhat-revised words Emma Lazarus (the woman who wrote the sonnet engraved on the Statue of Liberty) could have written for young farmers: Give us your "tired" rake, your baler "poor," Send the "wretched refuse" you want no more,

The "homeless" harrow, or "tempest-tost" tedder

We "list our lamps" inside empty barn "doors."

A CHURCH IN THEIR HOUSE

August 15, 1982

Background Scripture: Acts 18; Romans 16:3-5a; 1 Corinthians 16:19.

Devotional Reading: Galatians 6:1-10.

I've never had either a Priscilla or Acquilla in any congregation I've ever served. Nevertheless, I feel as though I know these two people very well, for I have had many parishioners who were their spiritual successors.

These have been people who have been largely unsung, yet very, very vital to the life of the congregation. They have been the kind of people that no church can long survive without. They may not be the most wealthy or well-known, but they are the kind whose contribution to the life of the church goes considerably above the beyond what may be regarded as "par for the course."

He Stayed With Them

If Priscilla and Acquilla had been totally unable ever to teach one word of the gospel, their contribution to the church at Corinth would be no less vital. Although they had already known the pangs of persecution in Italy, from whence they had recently fled as Jews, when Paul arrived in Corinth, they opened their home to Paul and hosted him in it throughout his ministry in Corinth.

"And he went to see them," the writer of Acts says, "and because he was of the same trade he stayed with them, and they worked, for by trade they were tentmakers." Priscilla and Acquilla may not have been able to contribute much money to the Corinthians church, but bravely and unselfishly they put their home at his disposal so that Paul could pursue the gospel in this city that needed it so badly.

By contrast, today we are often reluctant to let the ministry of the gospel impinge upon our private lives. We go to church for our religious observance, but we are not anxious to open our homes for the Church. We don't want it to interfere with the routines of our lives.

Left In Ephesus

When, at last, Paul determined that the time had come to move on from Corinth and return to Asia Minor, despite their well-established tent-making enterprise in Corinth, they gave up everything to go along with Paul. It is a surprise, then, that we learn in Acts 18:19 that "they came to Ephesus, and he left them there." They stayed on in Ephesus while Paul moved on. Here were two people who were willing to take great risks for the sake of the gospel. Whatever they had, they were willing to invest it in the work of the Lord.

Paul later writes of them, "Greet Priscilla and Aquila, my fellow workers in Christ Jesus, who risked their necks for my life..." Yet, in a way, equally as impressive was their willingness to risk controversy in helping Apollo to grow further and deeper in his Christian commitment. Instead of being condemning him because his gospel was somewhat incomplete, they invested their own time in efforts in helping him perfect his own ministry. No wonder Paul and all the Gentile churches were so grateful for these two people.

To Plan For Fall Wheat Seeding

The time is fast approaching for our wheat growers to be making plans for their fall seeding. Some of the local wheat may not be satisfactory due to the wheat scab found in many fields this year. If you use local wheat, be sure you know the source and have it cleaned and treated for disease. Also, if you had a scab problem this year, do not plant seed in the same field this fall; the fungus can remain in the soil.

Certified seed would be the best route to take if you experienced any problem with scab or powdery mildew this year. The extra cost for certified seed is well worth it to help insure a good crop next summer.

Plan your seed needs now so you are ready to plant when the conditions are right.

To Check Silo Size

How much silage or high moisture corn must you feed each day to keep ahead of spoilage in the silo? The amount will vary considerably from cold days to hot days. Can your herd consume this much feed? The answer to these questions depends on the diameter of the silo, how well the feed was processed and packed when it was ensiled, herd size, feeding program, season of the year and type of storage structure, according to our Dairy Agent, Glenn Shirk.

If you are ensiling high moisture ground shelled corn in an upright conventional silo, you'll need to remove at least 2 inches of grain a day in warmer weather to keep ahead of spoilage. For a 14-foot silo, that is 1400 pounds or more of corn per day — 24 pounds per cow in a 60-cow herd. If you're ensiling whole shelled corn or ground ear corn, the material does not pack as tightly, and up to 4 inches may have been removed daily. Four inches of this material in a 14-foot silo is 2,456 pounds — 41 pounds per cow in a 60-cow herd!

In the latter situation, a 10-foot silo would require 21 pounds of corn be fed. If a limited oxygen storage unit is used, sizing is less critical. Feeding 2 inches of corn per day year-round would require a silo 61 feet tall; 4 inches per day requires a total of 122 feet of silo height.

To Stay In Touch With Creditors

Maintaining a close relationship with your creditors and telling them about your financial status won't likely erase your debts, but will ease your creditors' mind. Creditors get concerned when someone owes a sizeable bill and they never see him. By staying close to your creditors, you may be able to write another payment plan. Some bankers will renegotiate the payment schedule and add a year or two, thus cutting down the monthly or annual payments.

You may also need to visit about refinancing. In most cases you will be paying a higher rate of interest and it won't do you that much good, but it still deserves a look. Sometimes by refinancing through another source you can often obtain a lower rate of interest. It's

Talk to the man who knows feed handling systems.

Extra weight. Extra capacity. Extra performance for top unloading silos. That's what Badger's Pow-R-Trac Unloader is all about.

Badger's Feed Handling Equipment is built to last with a minimum of maintenance and energy use. It is designed to help you meet your goals for profitable feeding.

Badger also offers the best finance programs in the farmstead industry with up to four months preinstallation waiver programs available from your participating Badger Dealers!

Why feed the same valuable feed to all of your animals when you don't have to? With Badger's Pow-R-Trac Feeder, you can save that valuable ration for high producers or finishing, and feed a different ration to the others. That's what SELECT FEEDING is all about. However, the Pow-R-Trac is adaptable to any feeding situation. A high volume feeder to minimize your labor and energy costs.

Now developing the right rations is even easier with Badger Feed Processing equipment.

Make your feeding program even more profitable with a Badger Feed Weigher/Mixer and Roller Mill Feed Processing Equipment. It's backed by the Badger name which means you'll get the right mix every time.

The Badger Northland Pow-R-Trac Silo Unloader. It's 22 tons* better!

*Based on a 24-ft. diameter 70-ft. high silo filled with 70% moisture corn using a multiple suspension ring drive unit.

The Badger Pow-R-Trac is built better than other models with extra iron and extra weight to unload evenly, top to bottom. Match that extra weight with its hardened knives over the full length of the rugged auger and a digger wheel that shaves silage off the walls, and you've got an unloader that will chew through even the toughest hard packed or frozen material.

But that's not all.

With its unique 3-point suspension, the Pow-R-Trac hangs higher, up to four feet higher than most ring drive unloaders. And this means up to 22 tons* of extra capacity! Enough to feed two extra animals, and that adds up to extra profit.

Feed handling versatility is the key to Badger's Pow-R-Glide.

Badger's Pow-R-Glide Conveyor/Feeder handles virtually any application.

- High Volume Conveyor
- Bunk Feeder
- Conveyor/Feeder Combination

One machine, one low horsepower drive unit. Can be tailored to your operation, inside or outside, with inclines, declines and dropouts. It works and works efficiently!

OUR READERS WRITE, AND OTHER OPINIONS

Saving our farmland

America's position as world leader in agricultural productivity has never been questioned. Our farmers continue to produce food and fiber with an efficiency that is unprecedented in human history. Today's farm operators possess the knowledge and highly technical skills to meet the food production challenges of the nation and world for years to come.

Despite my optimism for the future and my confidence in America's farmers, I am deeply concerned by the rate at which our prime farmland is being converted to other uses. Secretary of Agriculture John Block has called this problem "a crisis in the making". Indeed, with perhaps three million acres of precious farmland lost every year, our farmers may eventually find themselves hard-pressed to meet world demand for U.S. agricultural products which could increase by 80 percent during the next 20 years. If current trends continue, several states, including New York, Florida, West Virginia, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island, may lose much of their farmland during that same time period.

Having lived in an area adjacent to a large city, I have witnessed a creeping urban expansion which has resulted in an irreversible loss of fertile farmland to housing developments and highways. As a former local government official, I believe that state and local leaders working with the cooperation of private landowners have traditionally been best able to deal with the conflicting goals of urban development and agricultural land use and preservation.

The most often used approach in preserving land for agriculture has been zoning. This approach has sometimes proved to be too restrictive and has often resulted in an unfair reduction of the value of a farmer's land.

In New York state, the agricultural district law is designed to ease the pressure of development on prime farmland. It provides that farmers may join agricultural districts, which protect their land from excessive property taxation and grants other important protections against urban and encroachment.

Recently, Long Island's Suffolk County tried a new program called Purchase of Development Rights (PDR). Under this program, a farmer may voluntarily sell the development rights of his farmland to the county. In return, the county pays the farmer the difference between the development or market value and the lower farm value of the land. The farmer may then continue to farm, and his property taxes will be permanently based on the lower agricultural value.

This program has shown a great deal of promise. A major drawback, however, has been the inability of a single county to meet the high cost. In New Jersey, a large majority of the voters felt this issue was important enough to pass a $50 million bond issue to find their PDR program.

In addition to programs of this type, the federal government can play a supporting role in preserving farmland by offering educational, technical, and financial assistance to interested local governments. Conflicting federal policies have often contributed to the loss of valuable farmland. President Reagan is currently working to implement a provision of the 1981 Farm Bill requiring all federal agencies to review and change (if possible) any programs that contribute to farmland conversion.

Perhaps more important than any single policy in keeping agricultural land in the hands of our nation's farmers, though, is the necessity to restore this country's economic health so that farmers can stay in business. Federal tax credits and other incentives may be necessary to help farmers withstand the financial pressures of encroaching urban development.

America has been blessed with an abundance of fertile land, but it is not without limit. If we take action now, a crisis can be avoided and we can ensure that future generations will be able to share in the abundance that flows from our American agricultural system.

worth the effort and time to visit with your creditors, claims Chester D. Hughes, Extension Livestock Agent.

To Fertilize Strawberries

Your new strawberry patch should be pushing runner plants by the dozen at this time of the summer. It is a good idea to apply another shot of fertilizer to these new plants during August. A fertilizer of nitrogen only, or one high in nitrogen is best.

The objective is to encourage more runner plants and to develop strong runner plants; these will help increase the yield next summer. Also, weeds must be controlled at all times in order to have healthy strawberry plants. The earlier in the summer we can get the runner plants to take root, the better they will become established and yield next year.

BIG FARM POWER AND EQUIPMENT

COMPARE STEIGER AGAINST THE COMPETITION

THE KEYS TO COMPARING 4WD TRACTORS.

Drawbar horsepower. The most basic criterion is how much can it pull as measured in horsepower at the drawbar. This is more important than engine horsepower because the drawbar is the working end of the tractor.

Cost per drawbar horsepower. This is the real way to measure what you're getting for the money. Just divide the cost by the tested drawbar horsepower and you've got a figure you can use to compare all makes and types of tractors.

Fuel consumption. How much work can the machine squeeze out of a gallon of diesel fuel? While many people gauge fuel efficiency by gallons per hour, this is not the best measurement. The best way, amount of work per gallon, or more scientifically horsepower hours/gallon.

Drive train ratio. Divide the drawbar horsepower by engine horsepower. The result expressed as a percentage indicates how much power is actually available to do work at the drawbar.

Weight to horsepower. Generally speaking, the higher the weight to horsepower ratio, the more power the tractor will ultimately deliver. You might ask, why doesn't everyone build them real heavy? The answer is the cost of steel. But like in everything else, you can find quality if you look for it.

Noise. All manufacturers have a decibel rating on their cabs. One Steiger four wheel drive has been proven to be as quiet as 75.5 decibels under full power and load. That's about as quiet as a pick-up truck. A quiet tractor reduces operator fatigue, improves productivity.

LISTEN TO WHAT EASTERN FARMERS ARE SAYING ABOUT HOFFMAN SILAGE INOCULATOR.

"We find that by using Hoffman Silage Inoculator we have consistent high quality haylage eliminating hot spots and heating and sour smell, should it be too wet. It also improved the corn silage — no mold, etc. It produces a sweet smell and the cows relish it. We also like it because it doesn't eat up the equipment."

FULMER BROTHERS
Nazareth, Pennsylvania

"Normally, seepage starts about one week after silo filling. This year I had no seepage and the moisture was at least the same, if not higher, than in the past several years. Two of my neighbors tried it and think it's the best product they have ever used. They tried other products, but were not satisfied with the results. It really does what the literature says it will do."

BRUCE BRESEE
Ulster, Pennsylvania

"We've used Hoffman Silage Inoculator for two years. We put up high moisture ground shelled corn by spreading the inoculator on the corn in the bin on the combine and letting it get mixed that way. We found we could feed the treated high moisture corn right into the hot weather. We have also checked it on haylage. We are more than well satisfied with it."

LARRY SWEENEY
Mechanicville, New York

USDA extends corn-sorghum reserve rotation

YORK — Farmers who have corn or grain sorghum in the producer-owned grain reserve now may rotate these crops out of storage up to 60 days before replacing it with newly-harvested grain, according to Richard Deardorff, Chairman of the York County ASC Committee.

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block said it is routine for farmers to remove old-crop reserve grain from storage and replace it with the new crop in order to maintain the quality of grain under loan.

Block said in many parts of the country, the 1981 crops of corn and grain sorghum were harvested during abnormally wet weather and stored at a higher moisture level than usual. In addition, excessive rains and high humidity and temperatures in many major grain-producing areas this year have led to a greater than usual possibility of stored grain going out of condition, he said.

The rotation period extension is a one-time change made to cope with special weather conditions and will apply only to the replacement of prior years' crops with production from 1982 crops.

Wheat and barley were not included in this decision because those commodities have not had deterioration problems.

Producers wishing to take advantage of the extended rotation period should contact their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office prior to removing their crops from storage.

Deardorff also noted record or near record exports of U.S. wheat seem likely for 1982/83.

The United States will have large supplies and world wheat prospects look down 2 percent from last year, according to a report issued recently by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service in Washington, D.C.

The U.S. crop may total over 2.7 billion bushels, only 3 percent below 1981's record high harvest. Although the U.S. wheat crop amounts to one-sixth of the world crop, the United States provides nearly half the 100 million metric tons of wheat that flow in international trade.

Because weather reduced crop prospects in Australia and the USSR, USDA economists estimate the world wheat crop at 445 million metric tons, off 2 percent from 1981/82. Trade, spurred by expanded use in many countries, may break the 100 million ton mark, and total world use could even outrun production, causing a slight downturn in world stocks.

Wheat exports from the United States may match last year's record high, 1.77 million bushels (48.1 million metric tons). Due to Chinese demand, a record 15 million bushels (48.1 million metric tons). Due to Chinese demand, a record 15 million tons, Soviet wheat imports of nearly 20 million tons, and weather damage to India's crop, economists expect the strong exports of U.S. wheat to continue.

U of Md. field day offers urban and rural topics

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Crops, computers and cuisine are just a few of the offerings visitors will see at the University of Maryland's 1982 Crops and Soils Field Day, August 18.

The annual open house for farmers, urban gardeners, scientists, agri-business people and the general public is a showcase of the latest in agriculture and aquaculture research, home economics and engineering studies.

Held at the university's Wye Research and Education Center on Maryland's Eastern Shore, this year's program includes:

- ✓ Experiments with new farm and garden crop varieties;
- ✓ Studies of coping with insect pests;
- ✓ New plant breeding programs for the food of tomorrow;
- ✓ A special home economics program that describes "fad diets", some new ideas about the sweet potato, and, seafood for "calorie conscious cuisine";

✓ Engineers' studies of raising fish and shellfish down on the farm;

✓ Bringing the computer to the rural farm operation;

✓ Scientists' efforts to squeeze a few barrels of oil from Maryland vegetables to "extend" diesel fuel.

Farm wagons will carry visitors to exhibits around the center. The tours begin at 9 a.m. and run until noon. Other exhibits are displayed until 4 p.m.

The Crops and Soils Field Day is sponsored jointly by the University of Maryland's Agricultural Experiment Station, the Cooperative Extension Service, the College of Agriculture, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and the Wye Institute.

The Wye Research and Education Center is located off US 50 east, south of Queenstown.

Conestoga Classic averages $1,875

LAMPETER — A Lime Hollow Elevation Mars daughter that milked over 21,000 lbs. in her first lactation topped the revived Conestoga Classic Holstein Sale in Lancaster County Wednesday night.

El-Dell Mars Madeline, Good Plus with an Index of 1538, brought the top price of $3,600 of the 41 head in the sale, which has been brought back by the Lancaster County Holstein Club after an absence of a couple of decades.

Consigned by Paul Welk, of Peach Bottom, Madeline was purchased by D. Lamar Witmer, of Manheim, under whose presidency the county sale has been revived by the Holstein Club.

The sale, held on the first chilly, rainy night in quite a spell, was staged under the large pole barn on the Lampeter Fairgrounds and attracted a large crowd of several hundred onlookers. Sale chairman was John Howard, of Willow Street, and the Backus brothers handled the bidding and banter.

Two other consignments topped the $3,000 mark in the sale, which grossed $76,925 for an average of $1,875.

A Conductor daughter, who milked over 17,000 lbs. in her first lactation and was back at 78 lbs. a day in July after a June freshening, sold for $3,200. The dam of Fataja Conductor Laurella has records topping 26,000. Consigned by Gregory Landis, Lancaster, she went to Bob Swope, of Marietta.

The third-high seller came out of the Len-Lyn herd of Galen Crouse, Stevens, and crossed the Susquehanna to the Knight herd in Airville. Len-Lyn Chief Empress, whose first lactation topped 19,000 and is back at 78 lbs. a day after calving in July, brought $3,100.

The Holstein Club is hoping to resume the Conestoga Classic on an annual basis and a decision will be made following review of this year's revival.

Dairymen, Inc. opens

investment to former members

BALTIMORE, Md. — Dairymen, Inc. members who held equity in Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers have been given the opportunity to reinvest that equity.

Equity that is due for redemption on September 1, 1982 can be reinvested in the Member Equity Reinvestment Program. Those who choose to participate will receive an interest rate of 15.5 percent or the Louisville Bank for Cooperatives Term Rate, whichever is higher. Interest will be paid annually.

Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers became the Middle Atlantic Division of the Louisville-based cooperative on September 1, 1982.

Already more than 25 percent of the division's dairy farmer members have chosen to reinvest in MERP more than $50,000 of their 1969-70 certificates of equity which are eligible for cash redemption on September 1, 1982. Division Manager Ralph Strock is pleased with the interest expressed as it represents confidence in and commitment to Dairymen.

Investment programs such as MERP allow Dairymen to plan for the future of the dairy industry by undertaking such projects as the introduction of UHT long shelf life milk in this country. Dairymen's new UHT plant is Savannah, GA is now in production and plans are that the new milk will be available in this area in 1983.

(CORTLAND, NY — The grand and reserve grand champion females of the Fifth Annual Empire Classic Polled Hereford Show was exhibited by Pennsylvania breeders Frank and Becky Darcey, Spring Bottom Farm, Fairfield, Adams County.

Before being selected as the grand champion female, judge Phil Taylor of Lawtons recognized the animal's qualities and tagged her as the show's calf champion. Winning the purple rosette found the younger Spring Bottom entry standing over a stablemate that was selected as the senior and reserve grand champion of the female show. Darceys also exhibited the reserve senior champion heifer, and were awarded Premier Breeder and Exhibitor banners.

Doug Stape of Stanley exhibited the champion cow/calf pair and Elm Farm of Richmondville showed the reserve champion pair. Marshall Farm of Graystone Granite progeny.

Elm Farm exhibited both champion and reserve champion bull calves. Livingston Farm of Central Bridge exhibited the junior champion bull and Marshall Farms the reserve junior champion.

Si-Jo Farm of Fulaski exhibited the senior and grand champion bull and Livingston Farm exhibited the reserve senior and reserve grand champion bull.

The event was sponsored by the Empire Polled Hereford Association with 33 breeders parading 96 head before judge Taylor.

Each entry was weighed, height measured and scanogrammed for back-fat. This information was made available to the exhibitor and to those attending the show.

Four animals were singled out for a performance judging contest with participants estimating height, weight, backfat and other measurements and commenting on the conformation of each animal. Feter Comerford, livestock grading specialist for the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, and William Greene, Extension livestock associate at Cornell University, used the same four animals for a performance demonstration. The contest was won by Jerry Mickelson of Newfield with his son Dan winning the junior division contest.

MILK MARKET NEWS

Federal Order No. 4

Class I Milk Price Unchanged
Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine recently announced a Class I milk price of $15.20 per hundredweight for September 1982. This price is unchanged from August and is 11 cents below the September 1981 Class I price.

Shine announced a Class II milk price of $12.47 per hundredweight for July 1982 and a butterfat differential of 17.0 cents for the month. The Class II milk price is up seasonally by 14 cents from June while the butterfat differential increased one-tenth of a cent.

These class prices are based on the July 1982 Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $12.42 per hundredweight at a 3.5 percent butterfat content.

The USDA reported that the wholesale price of Grade A butter at Chicago for July was $1.4759 per pound and the nonfat dry milk price was $.9342 per pound, f.o.b. plants in the Chicago area.

Comments asked on proposed suspension

Dairy farmers, cooperatives, milk handlers and consumers may comment until Aug. 10 on a proposal of the U.S. Department of Agriculture that would suspend certain provisions of the Middle Atlantic federal milk marketing order.

Edward T. Coughlin, dairy official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service at Washington, D.C., said the proposal would suspend for September the requirement of the order that limits diversions of milk directly from dairy farms to nonpool plants. He said Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative requested the suspension. The cooperative association has also asked USDA for a public hearing to increase the diversion allowances permanently.

Coughlin said Inter-State claims the present diversion allowances would result in uneconomic shipments of milk under current market conditions simply to allow the milk to be pooled under the order.

Copies of the suspension are available from: Joseph D. Shine, market administrator, P.O. Box 710, Alexandria, Va. 22313 — telephone (703) 549-7000; or, Dairy Division, AMS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Comments should be sent to: Hearing Clerk, Room 1077-S, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

HERE'S THE FILL & STIR PIPE FOR YOUR LIQUID MANURE TANK

Whenever you fill an above-ground liquid manure storage tank you worry if you will ever be able to get it empty again. Will the solids settle in the bottom to cause an impossible mixing problem? Will your equipment clog? Will you need to add so much water you'll be hauling manure for days?

Now you can relax. Because US Farm Systems of Pennsylvania has just designed a unique fill and stir pipe unit. This fill and stir unit sits vertically in over the top of the tank and you use your present transfer pump. You can transfer/fill the manure under the top crust. And since the top crust is not broken you keep all the plant nutrients in the tank.

When you get ready to haul manure, the mixing capability of this unit really goes to work for you. The top opening with a flexible snout moves up and down and sideways to allow you to discharge a stream of liquid in any direction to break up the top crust. At the same time, you can start a stirring action at the bottom of the tank by forcing liquid out of the lower opening of this unit.

So don't worry if you will get the manure out of your above-ground liquid manure tank any more. Write to US Farm Systems of Pennsylvania, 3053 Barren Road, Oxford, PA 19363. Or call today for an action-packed demonstration. Phone (301) 398-2948.

PDA reports good field-work conditions

All three regions of the state this week reported five days suitable for fieldwork. Field activities for the week included: spraying; baling straw; plowing; making hay; and harvesting wheat, oats, peaches, apples, cantaloupes, potatoes, cabbage, sweet corn, and tomatoes.

Showers were scattered during the week providing adequate moisture conditions in some localities while others had a moisture deficiency causing moisture stress in some crops. Statewide, 50 percent of FDA reporters rated topsoil moisture short, 45 percent rated it adequate, and 5 percent rated it surplus. In the northern region 53 percent rated it short, 41 percent rated it adequate, and 6 percent rated it surplus. In the central region 75 percent rated it short, and 25 percent rated it adequate, while in the southern region, soil moisture was rated short by 27 percent of reporters, adequate by 67 percent, and surplus by 6 percent.

In Pennsylvania, corn was 60 percent silked and 22 percent in dough compared with 60 percent silked and 20 percent in dough last year and also compared with the five year average of 57 percent silked and 16 percent in dough. In the northern region 61 percent of the corn crop was silked, and 18 percent was in dough. In the central region 65 percent was silked, and 15 percent was in dough, while in the southern region 54 percent was silked, and 32 percent was in dough.

Statewide, 13 percent of the potato crop was harvested, about the same as last year. In the northern region 10 percent was harvested, in the central region less than five percent was harvested, while in the southern region 22 percent of the potato crop was harvested.

Wheat harvest in the commonwealth was virtually complete, approximately a week ahead of last year.

By the end of the week, 63 percent of the oat crop was harvested, about the same as last year. In the northern region 52 percent was harvested, in the central region 54 percent was harvested, and in the southern region 80 percent of the oat crop was harvested.

Statewide, fall plowing was six percent complete with five percent last year. In the northern and central regions less than five percent was complete, while in the southern region, 11 percent was complete.

Second crop alfalfa was 72 percent harvested compared with 71 percent harvested last year. In the north 63 percent was harvested, in the central region 66 percent was harvested in the southern region 85 percent of the second crop was harvested. Third crop alfalfa was 13 percent harvested compared with 10 percent last year. In the north five percent was harvested, in the central region seven percent was harvested, and in the south 20 percent of the third crop was harvested.

By the end of the week, second crop clover was 39 percent harvested compared with 42 percent last year. In the northern region 39 percent was harvested, in the central region 29 percent was harvested, and in the southern region 44 percent was harvested.

The quality of hay made in the state during the week was rated fair by 52 percent of our reporters and good by 48 percent. In the northern region 44 percent rated it fair, and 56 percent rated it good. In the central region it was rated fair by 42 percent and good by 58 percent, while in the southern region hay quality was rated fair by 71 percent of our reporters and good by 29 percent. The amount of feed obtained from pastures was rated average by 60 percent of our reporters, below average by 38 percent and above average by 2 percent.

Another week of good weather allowed the winter wheat harvest to advance rapidly; progress nearly caught up with normal in many states. Rainfall in eastern areas benefited crops and pastures, but more is needed.

School lunch program

"Egg producers benefit from the purchase of spent fowl by the USDA for the school lunch program," explained Cathy McCharen, director of nutrition for UEF.

"This is an important market because it represents the only competition for Campbell Soup Co. in the purchase of spent fowl."

Turning responsibility back to the states would not only have a widespread impact on the quality of the school lunch program, but would affect commodity distribution, such as food banks and food for the elderly, she added.

"If it is turned back to the states, you would have different nutritional standards for school lunches and no consistency among the states. And there's no guarantee that nutritional standards would be as high as they are now under the federal government."

The various agricultural commodity organizations, consumer advocate groups and school food service groups began meeting this week to formulate support for keeping the school lunch program under federal responsibility.

Among testimony expected to be given at the September 21 hearings in support of federal retention will be that from various state and municipal officials and the commodity groups.

The docket for the hearings is still open. Groups or individuals wishing to present testimony should contact Nancy Kober, Subcommittee on Elementary, Secondary and Vocational Education, Room B-346, Rayburn Building, Washington, D.C. 20515; Tel: (202) 225-4368.

From August 16th to October 2nd, Agway offers you a red vest...free...with the purchase of 500 lbs. of Blue or Red Label Milk Replacer, or 1000 lbs. of Mineral Mix, or 250 lbs. of Milk Replacer and 500 lbs. of Mineral Mix.

Easy-to-mix Agway Blue or Red Label Milk Replacers contain highly-digestible milk protein with properly balanced amino acids. With more vitamins than whole milk, Agway Milk Replacers also include antibiotics to help your animals fight disease. Calves develop, thrive, and gain faster. And since one pound of Milk Replacer equals ten pounds of milk, it makes good business sense to feed the milk replacer and sell the milk you save.

Agway also offers you TCR, the all-pelleted complete feed designed for self-feeding. TCR guarantees your calves a superior early start. Research trials demonstrate that TCR I and TCR II give growth better than grain and hay fed separately.

A properly balanced total ration requires fourteen minerals in the right amount and ratio. For optimum production and the health of your herd choose from:

- FORTIMIN™ — when little alfalfa is fed
- LEGUMIN® — when 1/3 to 2/3 of the forages fed are alfalfa
- HI-PHOSPHOROUS — for cows fed legume forages
- HI-CALCIUM — to obtain trace minerals, sulfur and magnesium
- DAIRY-MINERALS — for mixing into local grists

Your Agway Dairy Enterprise Salesperson is ready to show you the way to fine-tune your feeding. And we'll keep you warm with the sportsman's down vest. Offer good through October 2, 1982.

New manual covers weed problem

UNIVERSITY PARK — "Controlling weeds is the number one cultural problem facing nurserymen," says Larry J. Kuhns, Extension specialist in ornamental horticulture at Penn State. But now there's a new, easy-to-use manual to help solve weed problems. It's called Weed Control Recommendation for Nursery, Landscape, and Christmas Tree Plantings 1982-83, and it's available from your County Cooperative Extension Service office.

There's more to controlling weeds than simply pulling them out. Some weeds are easier to control with non-selective herbicides that are safest if used before planting. Others are easily controlled by using pre-emergence herbicides. This guide will help professionals in the industry develop a balanced program to get the most control from their effort.

Physical controls — hand pulling, cultivation, and mulches — are familiar to most professionals. This manual emphasizes the chemical control of weeds and serves as a ready reference for all aspects of herbicide use on ornamentals. It offers basic information on the classification of the different types of herbicides, recommended rates of application and details on equipment calibration.

To order your copy, call your county Cooperative Extension Service office.

Remove Your Manure Pit Gases With The New PUMP OUT PIT FAN

Manure storage pits have been constructed without providing for ventilation of the pit, particularly in buildings constructed several years ago when pit storage was first popular.

A non-ventilated pit results in a build-up of harmful, caustic gases, such as carbon dioxide, hydrogen sulfide, methane, ammonia and mercaptans.

Hydrogen sulfide and carbon dioxide are heavier than air and, as the level of pit waste rises closer to the slats, the gases are forced closer to the animals.

Results of inhaling these gases may be deep, fast breathing from CO<sub>2</sub>. Hydrogen sulfide is one of the most toxic gases to animals and humans associated with liquid manure storage. This gas can cause severe irritation to the eyes and respiratory system and sometimes can result in death.

It is often difficult to make provisions for ventilating manure storage pits, but AAA Associates Inc. now offers a simple, sensible and inexpensive means of ventilating pits.

Virtually all liquid manure storage pits are equipped with pump out ports. For pump outs that do not extend into the manure, Pump Out Pit Fans can be adapted to the pump out ports.

The pit fans are housed in foot long 8" or 10" diameter PVC Pipe and can easily be adapted to existing pump out ports. The fans contain small, but powerful, highly efficient motors mounted on long lasting aluminum motor mounts. The propellers are airfoil design, cast-aluminum. All units are equipped with a vinyl-coated guard complete with plastic butterfly damper. All hardware and springs are stainless steel.

PVC pipe extensions and 45° elbows are available as accessory items. For six inch pump out ports, a reducer (8" to 6") may be used with fan model POPF-8 to provide ventilation through six inch pipe.

The Milk Check

TOM JURCHAK
County Agent

Old Habits

Old habits are hard to break and one of the oldest is producing more milk than last year. At least it seems that way in Order 2 where in April of this year, for the first time since August 1978 you produced less milk than the same month of the previous year.

At that time — four years ago — it lasted only one month and you were back to increasing production. This year, it was the same story with May milk shipments up nine million pounds over last year and June up 14 million pounds.

However, even though you're back on the track of increasing production, it isn't as heavy as it was a year ago. The first six months in Order 2 this year, shipments increased about 70 million pounds or 1.2 percent higher than 1981.

That's a lot less than the 198 million pounds or 3.6 percent that you jumped in the first six months of 1981 compared to 1980.

No doubt the pace is slackening but you still haven't turned the corner.

Another corner

Even if you didn't turn the corner on milk production, at least you did it on price last month. May was the low for the season in Order 2 at $12.61 and June milk was up to $12.63.

Not a large jump certainly, but with the same Class prices you had last month and the same 40 cent payment for the Louisville Plan you got the two cents from an improved class I utilization — up to 36.9 percent.

Total production was down over one million pounds per day for a decrease of 3.3 percent. Class I sales were down less than one percent from last month so you gained two cents on the exchange.

Grange asks "Is there a place for hydropower?"

By PATTY GROSS
Staff Correspondent

HUNTINGDON — What better place to talk about hydroelectric power than at Raystown Lake in Huntingdon County.

Members of the Pennsylvania State Grange gathered at the lake last month for their first energy conference. The day-long seminar was sponsored by the Grange and the Pennsylvania Rural Electric Association.

State Grange Master Charles Wismer said the seminar was organized for the Grange's energy and legislative committees, to learn about the potential for hydroelectric power development in the future.

They heard the bad along with the good. Hydropower is clean, safe and dependable, but it's an expensive proposition.

"Pennsylvania's Rural Electric Cooperatives have been actively looking at the potential for hydroelectric generating for five or six years," explained Joe Dudick of the Pennsylvania Rural Electric Association and Allegheny Electric Cooperative.

Dudick told the group that his firm commissioned a study in 1977-78 of the potential for water power facilities. The engineering study concluded that there were over 100 sites that were worth looking at more closely. Those sites have been evaluated to indicate which is the most feasible to develop.

The Raystown Lake is one of six sites being studied for water power. The Raystown branch of the Juniata River extends 30 miles and covers 118 shoreline miles. The land and water, over 29,000 acres, owned by the federal government entertains the public year-round with boating, fishing, hunting, camping and swimming. The dam was constructed between 1968 and 1973.

The other locations under study are Emsworth at Nevil Island and the Montgomery Project in Beaver County, both on the Ohio River. There is also the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Locks and Dams number 8 and 9, navigation facilities on the Allegheny River in Armstrong County.

There already are three "hydro" facilities operating in the state.

A number of factors are considered for a site to be able to produce electricity: the "head" of the site — the greater the water fall means the more energy there is to be captured; the annual flow of the body of water; environmental concerns which would result in condemning land; the facility surroundings and the cost of possible relocation; and tax and regulatory policies that could throw the project out of the realm of feasibility.

Grangers were told candidly that money is the stumbling block for power. "A project that produces a relatively small amount of electricity, creates a very large investment for the utility that is building the hydroelectric site," commented Dudick.

"The major savings for a hydroelectric facility, is the fact that the "fuel" — water — is free and the operating costs are very small."

Dudick went on to say that a "hydro" plant is more expensive to build, than nuclear which in turn is more costly than coal. Also, along with the free water and small upkeep cost, "hydro" sites will last 100 years or more. Plants, such as nuclear and coal, may only be in use 25 to 35 years.

He concluded his portion of the seminar by saying that hydroelectricity is a good thing to support. "We believe that for the future of our state, water power and coal will be major sources of energy. They will provide us with lower energy costs and enable us to decrease the amount of imported oil that we use."

Dudick promised increased development of hydroelectric generation when the problems of taxation, excessive regulation and interest rates are successfully addressed.

A representative of the Governor's Energy Council updated the Grangers on the Energy Council's job. "We are trying to simplify the process and make the burdens on developers easier while at the same time not greatly increase the risk of environmental harm," stated John Buffington. Buffington advised anyone interested in launching a "hydro" project to get a professional consultant with experience in the field. "The most important thing I have to say is don't try to go it alone," he stressed.

The Governor's Energy Council is preparing a "how-to" book on "hydro."

Those attending the energy seminar also were told to contact the Department of Environmental Resources to acquire site information.

During the day an overview of the Raystown project was presented by Richard Osborne, staff engineer for Allegheny Electric Cooperative. As the gathering looked out from the

Specter pushes hydropower legislation

WASHINGTON, DC — U.S. Sen. Arlen Specter (R-Pa.) testified last month that the nation's Northeast-Midwest region desperately needs to tap its hydropower resources to cope with rising costs which have almost quadrupled in this area over the last decade.

Specter told the Water and Power Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources that S. 1918, the NE-MW States Federal Hydropower Financing Authorities Act, will help lower energy costs in the region and facilitate economic development.

The bill was introduced last December by Specter and Senator Donald W. Riegle, Jr., (D-Mich.), who are co-chairmen of the Senate Northeast-Midwest Coalition.

The legislation would make the 18 states of the region eligible to apply for low-cost loans and loan guarantees to cover up to 70 percent of the costs involved with hydroelectric development.

Specter told the subcommittee that the NE-MW region is burdened with the highest per household energy costs in the U.S. Part of the reason for this, he said, is that just about every other area of the country except the NE-MW has received federal aid in finding solutions to energy problems.

Specter noted that the average household energy cost in New England rose from $386 in 1970 to $1,325 in 1980, while in the West the cost rose from $263 to $676. The State of Washington, he said, is blessed with the lowest residential energy costs in the nation, largely because of the Bonneville Power Administration, an example of energy aid by the federal government.

"In 1980," he said, residents of my own State of Pennsylvania spent 227 percent more on energy costs than did households in Washington state. Similar patterns exist in the commercial and industrial sectors.

Those areas which have been able to produce hydroelectric power pay less for energy, he said, noting that over 80 percent of the electricity generated in Oregon and Washington comes from hydropower, whereas almost 80 percent of the electricity in Rhode Island and Massachusetts is produced with petroleum.

"Yet the fact is the Northeast-Midwest has an abundant, but largely unused, source of energy in its waterpower," said Specter.

In arguing for subcommittee approval for the legislation, he said that the Congress in the past had clearly responded to the energy needs of the rest of the nation.

"I believe the federal government has the responsibility to do no less for the economically depressed Northeast-Midwest region of America than it has done from time to time for other areas with similar economic development problems," Specter concluded.

Researchers get more milk from growth hormone

UNIVERSITY PARK — Cows in plexiglass isolation chambers are helping unravel the mystery of why lactating cows produce more milk after injections of bovine growth hormone, Henry Tyrrell, a USDA scientist, reported at the recent American Dairy Science Association meeting held at Penn State.

In experiments at the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, in Maryland, milk energy production increased 26 percent, even though the cows ate slightly less feed. Tyrrell said the higher output of milk resulted from the cows' metabolism being shifted to production of milk at the expense of body tissue such as fat.

In this joint Agricultural Research Service-Cornell University study, lactating cows in the special plexiglass chambers were injected daily with natural growth hormone, Tyrrell said.

The chambers aided scientists to measure the amount of feed, water, and oxygen the animals consumed, and how much the animals excreted as urine, feces, methane, and carbon dioxide. The amount of milk produced and tissue gained or lost as fat and protein were also precisely measured using these chambers and supporting equipment.

Tyrrell said that although the increase in milk production using growth hormone is impressive, obtaining information on what happens metabolically during lactation appears an even more important consequence of this research.

Dale E. Bauman, a nutritional biochemist at Cornell University, said that because of the scarcity and high cost of naturally occurring growth hormone, the treatments to date have lasted only a few weeks. For this reason the long term effects on the cow and on milk production are not yet known.

The growth hormone used in these experiments was extracted from cow pituitary glands obtained from meat-packing houses. Such hormone is rare and expensive. However, more economical growth hormone produced by bacteria through genetic engineering may soon be available, Bauman noted.

Use of growth hormone on the average dairy farm is not anticipated anytime in the near future, Tyrrell estimated. A number of improvements in administering the hormone, and understanding of the mechanism of action, and demonstration of its safety will be required before practical application would be possible.

Soil saving is a way of life for Lancaster's Houseknecht

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO
MILLERSVILLE — It takes 1,000 years for one inch of topsoil to form under natural conditions.

And it takes less than four years for erosion to destroy that inch.

If erosion throughout the nation were confined to one region, all of the topsoil from an area the size of Rhode Island would be gone in less than three months.

The somber facts, provided by

"Abner contributed more than any other individual in the county," notes Amos Funk, Lancaster Conservation District Vice Chairman.

Funk attributes Houseknecht's success in signing up hundreds of farmers for soil-saving practices to the conservationist's sensible approach to a problem.

"He made farmers realize what was needed," Funks adds. "It will

In 1951, 66 percent of Lancaster County was in close-growing crops, such as alfalfa and wheat. Today, less than 30 percent of the land offers these crops, which cause far less erosion than corn.

"Hay is a hard thing to grow," says Houseknecht of the labor-intensive crop. "But corn has been so easy. You just plant it and harvest."

However, somewhere in between the planting and harvesting of corn, farmers disturb the soil much more. Plowing, discing, and for some, cultivating all take their toll on the land. Lancaster County now has more than 200,000 acres in corn fields.

Abner points out that corn has become king because of its profitability over hay.

If used correctly, no-till cropping systems can slow down the erosion rate, he says. But just having a no-till planter does not constitute good practice.

"That's only half. There is a lot more," he notes. Abner stresses the importance of using rye or another cover crop in the system, killing it at the knee-high stage.

"By keeping some kind of cover on the ground we can control 80 percent of soil erosion," explains Houseknecht.

Although soil-conservation practices are something many folks are familiar with in the last 50 or 60 years, Houseknecht explains that terraces and contours date back before Christ.

Evidence of contour farming dating back to 4,000 B.C. was found in the Philippines on rice paddies in the mountains.

In parts of hilly Europe, modern farmers employ conservation practices because of the scarcity of good land. Southern France sports terraces believed to have been built by the Phoenicians about 2,500 years ago.

For Houseknecht, his love and knowledge of the land, which began as a boy, became useful tools during the great depression.

Growing up in rural Sullivan County, Houseknecht admits that part of his interest was spawned by others.

"My mother would know every weed, tree and bush in the county," he says. In addition, his high school principal placed a major emphasis on biology and botany.

As the country began digging itself out of the Great Depression, the Civilian Conservation Corps began. The high unemployment rates of today paralleled the conditions in the early 1930s and the New Deal's CCC provided work for many.

Houseknecht worked on the CCC for four years, side by side with World War I veterans and young men just out of high school. Within those four years, the corps worked on woodland improvement, built local, state and federal citations for his work, takes great care with his own three-acres of land in Millersville.

While his wife Ruth tends the many varieties of flowers that surround their Atglen Stone house, Abner manages their huge garden.

"There's enough garden there for four people," he says. In adthe USDA, create the impetus for badly needed soil conservation programs, nationwide. The bottom line is quite simple — more erosion, less land, less food.

"About 75 percent of the world's children will go hungry tonight and every night of their life," states former Lancaster County soil conservationist Abner Houseknecht.

The tragedy borne by the world's hungry has been the driving force that kept Houseknecht on the heels of Lancaster County farmers from 1937 until his recent retirement this year.

SCS announces volunteer service

HARRISBURG — In these belt-tightening times when almost every day brings new cuts in programs and services, the Soil Conservation Service is responding to public need through a volunteer program.

"Thanks to the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981, the Soil Conservation Service now can accept the volunteer services of any person of any age or skill in helping with soil and water conservation programs," says Peter C. Myers, Chief of the USDA's Soil Conservation Service.

SCS volunteers are unpaid and will definitely not displace any USDA employee. According to Graham T. Munkittrick, State Conservationist in Pennsylvania, volunteers can help with field surveys and layout of conservation practices, help train students for soil and land judging contests and help with conservation education programs.

They can help construct outdoor learning areas, help with public information campaigns or with routine paperwork.

"Freeing SCS employees to concentrate on priority work helps us give the public more for each tax dollar," Munkittrick said.

"Since we announced the program in mid-May," Myers said, "the response has been excellent. More people are signing up every day." One of those volunteers is a long-time friend of resource conservation, actor

Eddie Albert who recorded radio spots to help promote the volunteer program.

Many skills are needed and volunteers are permitted to perform a wide range of services on a part-time basis.

"With the help of volunteers, we can be more responsive to farmers, ranchers and other land users, and do a better job for less money in less time," Myers says.

fire and truck trails and managed woodland inventory, which included more than 10,000 acres of forest.

In 1937, he arrived in southern Lancaster County to assist in a demonstrational farm "to show farmers what could be done." What he saw was a great deal of sheet erosion and large gullies.

"There were gullies big enough to sit a car in," he recalls.

A year later, the Lancaster County Conservation District was formed and strips and contours began appearing on county farms.

"Most of the farmers we have worked with have been at the request of the farmers," Abner says. "Spring and fall were really busy, but it was up to the farmer when he wanted to do it. We'd lay out the work but insist the farmer would be right there with us."

Some farmers, Abner recalls, were soil conservation zealots from the start.

Houseknecht arrived at a farm, several years ago, which had gone to seed by its previous owner.

"The farm looked like a jungle," he notes. The new owner, a dairyman, was so anxious to begin conservation practices that he did everything at his own expense.

Whether or not farmers thought they needed to improve their land, was usually decided after a hard rain, remembers Houseknecht.

"After a heavy rain, the phone would be ringing all morning," he says.

The caretaker of Lancaster County, who has received several dition, the Houseknecht home includes several trees, which seem to come alive with personality when Abner, an avowed "tree nut," speaks of them.

One particular tree is a distant relative to the California Redwoods. An oriental tree, whose gnarled trunk narrows like a pyramid from the base up, arrived as a handful of seeds from a friend, several years ago.

Several Pin Oak, standing tall and strong throughout the yard, were no more than an inch in diameter when Abner moved them from their forest home about 30 years ago.

As he moves among his trees, garden and as he moved around the county, Houseknecht is reminded of an "eleventh commandment" offered by W.C. Lowdermilk, former SCS assistant chief:

"Thou shalt inherit the Holy Earth as a faithful steward, conserving its resources and productivity from generation to generation. Thou shalt safeguard thy fields from soil erosion, thy living waters from drying up, thy forests from desolation, and protect thy hills from overgrazing by thy herds, that thy descendants may have abundance forever."

If any shall fail in this stewardship of the land thy fruitful fields shall become sterile stony ground and wasting gullies, and thy descendants shall decrease and live in poverty or perish from off the face of the earth."

Packing plant encourages more local beef

Stewart "Turk" Laidlow of the Consumer Affairs and Quality Assurance Division, Moyer Packing Company, Souderton, was guest speaker. Laidlow commended the cattlemen on the quality cattle they produce.

"However, we could use more cattle than are currently produced in Pennsylvania," he said. "Moyer Packing kills more than 1,000 head of cattle per day, and we like to use your local cattle."

Laidlow encouraged producers to market their livestock throughout the year, rather than summer and fall.

"Producers can benefit by marketing year-round because they increase their chances of receiving higher prices," Laidlow said.

Reserve Champion Junior Holstein honors went to Barb Layser of Myerstown with her Junior Yearling Elevation daughter, bred by the Hubert S. Miller estate.

The Premier Breeder of this year's Lebanon Fair Holstein competition was Mil-Harv Farms owned by the Harvey Bomgardner family of Annville.

The Bomgardners milk about 97 registered Holsteins with a rolling herd average of 16,000 lbs. of milk and 625 lbs. of fat. A family operation involving both sons and daughters, the Bomgardners own 240 acres and rent 100 acres. This family has been showing at the Lebanon Fair since 1954 and highlighted their show record with the Junior All-American Junior Yearling in 1979.

The Premier Exhibitor award went to Dale Fride Farm of R2 Annville. This farm includes 360 acres, operated by three sons and father, Dale Hostetter. The family maintains a herd of approximately 200 head of registered Holstein cattle, and Dale maintains a separate herd of approximately 100 head with which he is actively involved in buying and selling dairy cattle.

The Hostetters report a rolling herd average of 18,700 pounds of milk and 715 pounds of fat. The Hostetters have exhibited at the Lebanon Fair for at least 20 years.

In 4-H competition, Audrey

Arnold of Schaefferstown exhibited the Grand Champion Holstein. Audrey purchased the prize-winning 2-year-old from the Warren Hetrick herd of Lebanon.

The Reserve Champion Holstein in the 4-H show was exhibited by 10-year-old David Lentz. This 4-year-old daughter of Lenstate Ivanhoe Star was the Reserve Champion of last year's Lebanon open dairy competition and completed lactations of 18,600 pounds of milk as a 2-year-old and 17,800 pounds of milk as a 3-year-old. This home-bred cow is out of a

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

Ag research gets bad press

If the typical consumer thinks at all about agricultural research, it's probably because of some newspaper account of how money is being wasted on some meaningless government effort. Reporters love to isolate a research project that they really don't understand and then make fun of it.

In their zeal to uncover government waste and wrongdoing, they focus on the smallest bit of a huge mosaic and conclude that time and money are being wasted because they see no relevance in the work. In their infinite wisdom they destroy in print what could easily be another human's life's work. They make the researcher look silly, they laugh at what he does, and they warn the public to beware of such government waste now and in the future.

No doubt there are government research efforts that lack proper focus — and perhaps some of them appear at first glance to be silly. But does that make it so? Just because a researcher isn't looking for something that a farmer can take to the field, is he wasting time?

Example — a bee that makes baggies. That's right, a Department of Agriculture research effort involves a bee that excretes a kind of polyester that resembles a little plastic bag. The bees use them to shield their underground broods. But what possible good would they produce for mankind?

The Wall Street Journal considers this and many other agricultural research efforts a waste of tax money. But is that really being fair and does the reporter who made fun of the effort really understand it well enough to point out its uselessness? Granted, it's a reporter's lot to be suspicious of everything, but does he really think a scientist would spend time and money on a project with no purpose?

Perhaps it's the researcher's fault for not being willing to talk with a reporter. Or maybe it's the way researchers write about the things they do. But I'll bet anything that researcher is an intelligent, dedicated individual who knows what he is doing and can fit that little piece of the mosaic into a picture that does have significance for mankind.

Instead of horror stories about wasted agricultural research dollars, consumers need to know that agricultural research is working in the Department of Agriculture and in college agricultural experiment stations across the country.

It's still the best hope for increasing our own food supply and offering continued assistance to the hungry people of the world. That opinion has been expressed by agricultural leaders, some of them connected with agricultural research organizations, but many of them knowledgeable agricultural spokesmen who know that the only way to keep up with an ever-growing world population is through increased technology. And while agricultural research is making important breakthroughs, a lot more needs to be done and a lot more could be done if the research funds were available.

Sure, everybody in government needs more money, but the agricultural research organizations, primarily the state agricultural experiment stations and the U.S. Department of Agriculture, are spending relatively small amounts. And yet the payoff has been quite good.

At a time when most people in this country are pretty well fed, it's difficult to raise much enthusiasm for agricultural research. Appropriations are based on today's food needs rather than looking ahead 10 or 20 years. Perhaps we're still suffering under the surpluses that existed in the 1950s and 1960s and the farm problems that have plagued us ever since the 1930s.

At any rate, agricultural research has been given low priority compared to national defense, the energy crisis and so many other hot issues. Yet when you look ahead a few years, you can see the U.S. population is going to outstrip the available food supply unless new technology is brought into the system.

Right now American farmers are producing more of most foods than U.S. consumers want. So a lot is available for export. That export is important, not only to our trade position with other countries but also to the food supply of a lot of people.

American farmers have met the challenge of increased food production fairly well over the past years. When more of something has been needed, it's usually been there. But the heavy thinkers in agriculture seem to agree that it can't go on forever. That unless some major breakthroughs occur, one of these days we are going to run out. And depending on who you listen to, that could be a long time from now or it could be only a few years.

So instead of stop-gap, brush fire kinds of research, they say it's time to get back to the basics of agricultural research. To take a long look and set up a program that will go about solving some of the big technology problems that agriculture faces.

Unfortunately, agricultural research is like so many other things. You get about what you pay for. Occasionally, some researcher with a few bucks will stumble onto some great achievement, but this is rare. The big payoffs come through hard work on the part of a lot of people, using the best equipment and working over an extended period of time.

Research cutbacks over the years have caused the Department of Agriculture to reduce its research force. The state experiment stations are having problems because increased appropriations have not nearly kept pace with steadily growing inflation.

No one is crying wolf in the case of agricultural research. There's no question but that the need for food will be overwhelming. The question is, can we continue to squeeze out more production with current technology and the research breakthroughs that are coming along?

Granted, the polyester bee isn't going to feed the world's hungry people unless it can figure a way to pack a sandwich in each of those little bags it makes. And there are plenty of other research efforts that won't solve the world's food problems either. But dedicated scientists are at work — plugging away at seemingly meaningless projects — little pieces of a big mosaic. One that continues to change to meet our growing demands. It's a good system, it works, and it deserves support.

The challenge rests with the researchers to make the press, and ultimately the consumers, understand that.

York receives conservation funds

YORK — York County farmers who received storm-related damages from the heavy rain-storm on June 16 may apply to the York County Ag Stabilization and Conservation Service office for emergency conservation funding. The York office has received a total of $5,000 to cost share emergency conservation practices; including grading, shaping, releveling; removing debris from farmland; restoring permanent fences and restoring structures and other installations.

According to Peggyann Carnill, ASCS Director, interested farmers must apply to the York ASCS office by August 27. Applications must be approved by the York County ASC Committee before a farmer can begin installation of the conservation practice. For approved applications, ASCS will pay 64% of the total costs to install the practice.

In addition to the emergency conservation funding, $12,000 has been granted to York County for special agricultural conservation practices. These funds are to be used in the South Branch of the Codorus Creek and the Conewago Creek watersheds. Any farmer who lives in either of these watersheds can apply for funds for strip cropping, terrace systems, diversions and sod waterways.

Milk and the Phillies 'play ball'

PHILADELPHIA — Monday was Milk Night at Veteran's Stadium, with the Phillies taking on the Pittsburgh Pirates in a twinight double header before a crowd of 51,000.

In honor of Milk Night, children 14 and under received a plastic Phillies helmet featuring the "Milk...The Fresher Refresher" logo. The promotion was sponsored by the Mid-Atlantic Advertising and Promotion Agency.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell was on hand to throw out the first ball and to act as judge for a between-games cow milking contest. Also present for the Milk Night festivities was Pennsylvania State Dairy Princess Charlene Rohrer.

Prior to the start of the second ballgame, two teams of Philadelphia area TV and radio personalities squared off in a tag relay cow milking contest. Team captains for the event were Chris Wheeler, Phillies play by play announcer for the Prism cable network and John St. John representing WIFI radio.

Two Holstein cows, for the contest, were provided by Andrew Stoltzfus, of Morgantown, Pa.

Each relay team member had 30 seconds to milk their cow, located in the middle of a ring between the pitcher's mound and second base. The winning team was determined by the weight of the milk collected.

The TV team came up the winners with 1.15 pounds of milk, narrowly beating the radio teams 1.05 pounds.

The winners received a trophy dubbing them "Philadelphia's Finest Milkers," and the losers received a gaily decorated broom and dust pan.

Also on display at the stadium, in honor of Milk Night, was the "World's Largest Cow." A 20x10 foot tall helium balloon.

Two other ballgames this fall will feature dairy promotions sponsored by the agency. Baltimore Orioles meet the Texas Rangers on August 29 at Memorial Stadium, Baltimore. Children under the age of 12 will receive a milk thermos featuring the Orioles emblem and the "Fresher Refresher" logo.

On September 4 the Philadelphia Phillies take on the Houston Astros at Veterans stadium, Philadelphia for Back To School Night. Children under the age of 12 will receive a milk thermos featuring milk and Phillies logos.

Streambank stabilization is temporary procedure

WEST CHESTER — "Three bedroom colonial overlooking meandering stream. Ideal setting...everyone's dream home."

Unfortunately, even a babbling brook can become a raging torrent following spring snow melt and summer's heavy rains. And, eroding streambanks can be a nuisance or a nightmare.

According to Tim Smail, soil conservationist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service in West Chester, streambank erosion is a natural phenomenon and therefore, virtually impossible to stop.

Smail says, "Our office gets about 50 calls a year concerning streambank erosion problems. I generally tell people that stabilization is costly and at best, temporary. And, I'm not trying to discourage them. I'm just trying to be realistic. All but the smallest brooks will require some machine time and a lot of hand labor. And, there are many different practices which can be applied—each with a varying degree of permanence. Generally speaking, the more permanent, the more machine and labor time involved and the more the materials cost. Most projects require permission from the Fish Commission and the PA Department of Environmental Resources. Some larger projects may even require permits from the Army Corps of Engineers.

"Even after measures are installed, they require almost constant inspection and maintenance," says Smail. "I like to tell people, 'You go to work during the day and to sleep at night. That stream never takes a rest. It's out there 24 hours a day, 7 days a week just picking and hammering away at the bank. You've got to check it every spring and fall and after

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A petition charging China with deliberately expanding its mushroom production to increase imports to the U.S. was filed June 30, with the International Trade Commission on behalf of the American Mushroom Institute.

The petition, filed by Lewie Martin, special trade counsel for the AMI, states that China increased its mushroom production despite full awareness of the U.S. mushroom industry's sensitivity to imports. The petition was filed pursuant to Section 406 of the Trade Act of 1974 which provides the president with the power to impose quotas on imports from communist countries if those imports increase rapidly and cause injury to the domestic industry.

The ITC will report its recommendations on the petition to the president by Sept. 30. In the petition, AMI urges that a quota be placed on Chinese imports to keep them at a level that would cause no further injury to the domestic mushroom industry.

Two months ago, in a report to the president, the ITC said, "It is our view that the domestic mushroom industry continues to suffer serious harm from import competition."

Rapidly increasing imports from China are evident from government statistics. Imports of canned mushrooms from China increased from 17 thousand pounds in 1978 to 14.8 million pounds in 1980, principally because China was granted lower duties under a trade agreement effective Feb. 1, 1980.

In 1981, China doubled its exports to 27.4 million pounds by pricing its exports to the U.S. 17 to 37 percent lower than prices charge by Korea and Taiwan and underselling domestic mushrooms by 17 cents per pound.

Because the AMI believes that these prices constitute an unfair trade practice under the antidumping duty section of the Trade Agreement Act of 1979, it also will file a petition that could lead to dumping duties being assessed on imports from China.

every storm, and repair whatever damage has been done. If you do less than a full job you're only fooling yourself. And, if you don't maintain the work to protect your investment, it may not be worth doing in the first place. You won't fool the stream. If there is a weakness, the stream will find it and break through your protective measures."

pavilion onto the lake waters they were told that the study on Raystown Lake has been conducted over the past three years and was submitted to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission last September. They are still waiting for a license.

When a license is secured the work continues. Osborne estimated a year for engineering and designing of the plant, followed by a 3-year construction period.

In the case of Raystown, $600,000 worth of work has gone into applying for a license. It will probably cost $36,000,000 to put the project in operation.

Raystown will eventually have the potential to produce 77 million kilowatt-hours per year. That would supply 8,000 homes with average electricity use.

Pennsylvania Senate Majority leader Robert Jubelirer and House Majority Leader Sam Hayes wrapped up the day-long outing by expressing the Thornburgh Administration's support for hydroelectric power development.

House Bill 682 was passed in June. If it receives Senate approval, "hydro" projects would be exempt from the 3 percent Public Utility Reality Tax Act, during construction periods and the first 10 years of operation.

Two other hydro-related bills will be acted upon following the legislature's summer recess. House Bill 2006 would establish a financing authority to make funding possible. If House Bill 2055 is approved, the state would be land owned by the Commonwealth.

The Grange concluded the seminar by restating their position that the state's hydroelectric potential continue to be studied and developed.

announced Bureau of Markets chief Jim Sumner.

He explained that one committee will be looking into the mechanics of upgrading the minimum standards in milk. Sumner mentioned the possible development of a 10 percent solids milk but added, "We're open for suggestions."

A second committee will begin exploring a voluntary promotion program with a matching dealers fund.

"This will offer those farmers not in a federal order the opportunity to participate," Sumner explained.

Sumner said he expects at least a dozen people to fill each committee, with a first meeting anticipated next month. — DT

Village Farm owners dabble in antiques, painting

BY BETH HEMMINGER
Staff Correspondent

"Folk art decorative painting is apropos in the '80s with art interests growing in antiques, handicrafts and vintage art pieces," says decorative painter Debbie Wentz of Carlisle.

Debbie and Alan Wentz are the owners of the Village Farm, a retailing and wholesale supplier of ready-mixed background paints for the decorative painter, completed decoratively painted reproduction furniture, and other antiquated home furnishings; and also a flock of sheep.

Ten years ago, Debbie took her first lesson in decorative painting from artist, Jennie Piece of Mechanicsburg. Ever since her first lesson, she said she has been "caught-up" in this art form and over the years has steadily been perfecting her skills.

Debbie explained this art as painting on metals and woods with flat paint in Williamsburg colors; for example dry town green, barn red or Lancaster yellow, to name a few. These Williamsburg colors give the pieces an authentic look.

Artists of decorative painting usually paint on baskets, boxes, trays, tin ware and furniture. She stated that any type of picture can be painted on the items, but usually most artist paint folkloric scenes, flowers and birds, usually used in the 17th and 18th century by the artists who developed this art form so long ago.

With such enthusiasm in the art, Debbie began thinking of a way that she could turn this interest into a business. Husband Alan, saw Debbie's possibilities in a business and the couple began looking into depth at the business sale of the craft and found that it was as difficult for fellow craftsmen as it was for themselves to purchase fine quality ready-mix background colors because the former manufacturer liquidated his business.

The supply of the ready-mixed background colors was dwindling fast, said Debbie. And to have the colors mixed in a local paint store was extremely expensive.

The Wentzes decided to begin the venture. Their first step was looking for a paint manufacturer who could produce the flat alkylid finish paint. After continual searching, the couple found a manufacturer in Harrisburg to fill their need and the business was on its way.

As the months passed, Debbie said she saw a change in the business. No longer were the only customers decorative painters as had been the Wentzes original idea, but other people were stopping at Village Farm to purchase finished decorative painted reproductions and antique furniture.

Debbie said, "I never realized their was such an interest in the finished product, but it is really exciting."

So, during the past year Debbie and Alan have added finished and unfinished reproduction doll furniture and reproduction country antiques to the Village Farm inventory.

Debbie and Alan, both antique lovers, look at auctions, antique sales and shops for their reproduction inspirations and original Village Farm items. Alan, in his spare time is the wood craftsman, and has produced a crib, settle and dresser for their doll furniture line. He has made the items from either pictures or from copies that they purchased at a sale. Then, Debbie uses her handicraft of painting the decorative folkloric scenes on the furniture, giving each piece the look of long, long ago.

Their line of antique reproduction doll furniture will soon be seen in an advertisement in the National Doll Magazine.

Another unique 17th century home furnishing being revived by the Wentzes is a 'candle box.' Debbie explained that the candle boxes were used at that time to store the extra candles in the winter and all the household candles in the summertime from the heat. Hay or straw was placed in the trough of the boxes working as a buffer against the heat.

who holds a favorite Dorset lamb. Alan Wentz, a 4-H Extension agent, helps his wife in her business in his spare time.

Debbie has given these century old boxes a new name — 'gift boxes' — for their revival in the 20th century. She said that they don't have to be used just for candles, they can hold anything from pencils and pens to nuts and bolts.

Other projects still in the idea stage for the Village Farm are: producing an acrylic water base paint for the hobbyist who is after an extremely fast drying paint; opening up the shop for lessons to be given by nationally recognized decorative painters who would teach classes for several days then tour with the students through colonial and Dutch areas of Pennsylvania.

Debbie and Alan both feel that their life on a farm and their geographic location of colonial Carlisle have greatly influenced their idea for this type of business venture and has provided them with the background for a beautiful reproduction line of furniture and home furnishings. The couple agree that if they lived in a suburban area, a decorative art business would have been impossible. They have utilized many of the unused sheds and buildings on their farm into storage areas and a shop. Debbie said, "I really love the country lifestyle and try to blend its beauty into all my decorative art."

Along with the country beauty, Debbie works towards creating an authentic antique look in each of her pieces and has searched out the advice and help of long-time artists. One such artist is Andrew Loy, a relative of the Wentzes and a decorative artist for 50 years. Loy developed a variegated rose for furniture decoration that is painted with only one swipe of the brush.

Debbie studied and learned this technique from Loy and now uses the variegated rose as her trademark for Village Farm.

She enjoys painting on new wooden and tin items as well as old items that she has discovered at flea markets or rummage sales. When she purchases an item with fragments of paint remaining, she first has to remove all of the old paint. She places it in boiling Spic and Span water, an aid in paint removal. The, she sands the item until it is paper-smooth.

Sanding is the most important part of decorative painting said the artist. The surface must be smooth so the paint will flow on smoothly with no laps or brush marks. After the painting of the item is completed, Debbie seals in the colors with a minimum of 10 coats of varnish. She stated that 10 coats of varnish or more will keep the paint and color intact. She said if fewer coats of varnish are used, there is a possibility that the paint will chip and the color fade.

A story about Village Farm would not be complete if the pet sheep and horses were not mentioned. Heidi, the youngest of the Wentz children is the sheep herder and exhibits her prize winning Dorsets at the local fairs in 4-H and Open competition.

Debbie said, "Having pets like these are just another pleasure of living on a farm." And she added, "These animals have all become a part of my paintings at one time or another."

Sewing authority to talk at Farm and Home Center

LANCASTER — Marjorie Arch Burns, a nationally known authority on home sewing and fashion, will present a Fashion And Sewing Seminar at the Farm and Home Center, here on August 24. The Seminar is being coorminated by Doris W. Thomas, Extension home economist with the Lancaster County Extension.

Burns learned her trade from Edna Bryte Bishop, the founder of the Bishop method of clothing construction. Burns co-authored several books with Bishop and has also authored ten of her own books on sewing and fitting.

Marjorie Arch Burns is independent. She does not represent any company in the sewing industry, therefore is free to express her own beliefs about what is best on the market today. With her wealth of experience as an educator, speaker, author and sewing expert, she is considered by many to be the greatest sewing authority today.

The seminar will include a potpourri and expertise on inspirational ideas for sewing including: current trends in tailoring; quick designer looks, keeping up with the importance of grain; quality ideas and secrets for simple and successful sewing of all types of garments and new, very simple sewing projects and boutique ideas.

For more information about the Fashion And Sewing Seminar, write or call the Lancaster County Extension Service and request a flyer describing the seminar.

The Wentzes' business all began with Debbie's love of painting. Here she paints a new addition to her product line - the 17th century candle box.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

It was the plastic bag that first got the subject rolling.

Each summer about this time, our major seed corn supplier sends out to each customer a thank-you letter. Along with that note comes a gift of a large, sturdy plastic bag, decorated with brightly-colored advertising for the firm.

Those bags have come in handy over the years, for everything from carrying in produce from the garden to lugging seashell treasures home from the shore.

"I can remember Mom keeping her sprinkled wash was in these bags, storing it in the refrigerator until the clothes were dampened through," mused the farmer as he examined the most recently arrived gift bag.

"I used to do the same thing," I recalled. "Do you realize just how long it's been since I sprinkled a basket of wash?"

Fact is, I can't even remember when I last ironed some item of clothing, except maybe for pressing the seams and hem in some new garment hot off the sewing machine.

We are raising a whole generation of people who will never know the joy of standing over a hot iron in mid-August.

Funny, isn't it, how an item that one generation simply could not have existed without is laughable - or maybe collectible - to the next generation down the road.

How about butter churns, horse hames and hog scrapers, all once familiar items to routine rural household living: Or cream separators, shoe button hooks, wool carders, flax breakers, or the crank for starting the car?

And not only household items, but customs and fads constantly change with the marching of time.

For instance, have you ever heard of "rats?"

Not those dirty, ugly, four-legged, skinny-tailed, grain-thieving beasts that sneak around the barn.

No, this is a kind of "rat" that was once used in milady's hair-do.

Grandma and I were chatting about hair-dos a few Sundays ago, as we tidied up our Sunday School classroom, when she mentioned that she and her teenage friends put "rats" in their hair.

It seems that young ladies in Grandma's day carefully saved those hairs that remain behind on a comb after they were finished styling their tresses. She also says that no one used brushes for their hair then.)

When a sufficient quantity of those hairs had been accumulated, they were wrapped around a finger into a loose roll. That roll of hair or "rat" was then carefully tucked into a section of tresses which needed support, or fluffing, to look stylish. Sort of an alternate to teasing, I guess.

and, since using rats was considered somewhat vain, they were carefully concealed so that the outside help for the hair-do was not obvious.

After careful consideration, I've decided not to begin collecting those loose strands of hair to be saved toward the future when the fad of "rats" inevitably returns.

My hair looks "ratty" enough sometimes without any outside help.

THINKING ABOUT MONEY?

Is money the root of all evil or the pathway to heaven? Your attitudes toward money make a big difference in your ability to make rational financial decisions. Actually money is simply an exchange of effort or work for an ability to buy goods and services. There is nothing basically good or bad about it.

Nevertheless, many people have complicated, often conflicting patterns of using or managing money that interfere with their ability to plan realistically.

The first step toward balanced money management is to identify your attitudes toward it. If you let others make your financial decisions or if you are to keep track of where your money went, then it's time you developed a sensible money management system. Here is a list of money management skills you need to develop to manage your money effectively:

Identify your feelings about money.

Take responsibility of your own financial affairs and talk about your financial situation with your family.

Set goals for yourself as well as for your family.

Know your current financial situation, what your assets and liabilities are for yourself and your family.

Establish a credit record, and be sure to keep it in good standing.

Develop a good planning system, including keeping track of your current income and spending, your use of credit, and establishing controls to help you keep to your financial goals.

Have some financial assets in your own name - all adults should.

Chocophiles, take note!

All you chocophiles — those of you who cannot say "no" to the delicious, sweet taste of a chocolate candy bar, a fudge nut brownie, and a chocolate chip cookie — take note: there are more ways of eating chocolate than you think.

For gastronomic delight, we have included such recipes as Chocolate Fruit Soup, Chocolate Raisin Bread, and Chocolate Chili. Remember, as the saying goes, "Don't knock it till you've tried it."

But if experimenting isn't your forte, then try the 'regular' recipes which are included also. You'll love chocolate cake and delight in fudge and marble squares. Happy 'chocolating.'

CHOCOLATE FRUIT SOUP

One 6-oz. pkg. semi-sweet real chocolate morsels, divided
1 c. milk

One 10-oz. pkg. frozen strawberries, drained
1 1/4 c. heavy cream
1/2 t. vanilla extract
1/2 t. cinnamon whipped cream

Place 1/2 c. semi-sweet morsels in blender container, process at high speed about 15 seconds or until fine particles are formed; set aside. Combine over hot (not boiling) water, remaining 1/2 c. morsels and milk; heat until morsels melt and mixture is combined. Morsel-milk mixture will contain flecks of chocolate; this will not be a smooth mixture. In blender container, combine morsel-milk mixture, strawberries, heavy cream, vanilla extract and cinnamon. Process at high speed until smooth (about 30 seconds). Chill until ready to serve (at least 3 hours). Garnish with whipped cream and grated morsels.

TOLL HOUSE MARBLE SQUARES

Preheat oven to 375 degrees.

1/2 c. softened butter
1/4 c. plus 2 T. granulated sugar
1/4 c. plus 2 T. brown sugar
1/2 t. vanilla
1 egg
1 c. flour
1/2 t. soda
1/2 t. salt
1/2 c. coarsely chopped walnuts
1 c. chocolate chips

Mix butter, sugars and vanilla thoroughly. Beat in egg. Blend in flour, soda, and salt. Mix in walnuts. Spread in greased oblong pan. Sprinkle chocolate chips over top of dough. Place in oven 1 minute. Remove from oven and run knife through dough to marbleize. Return to oven. Bake 12 to 14 minutes. Cool and cut in squares. Also good before it's quite cool.

Amelia Hoover, Manheim

Can you make a chocolate cake with just one square of chocolate? Yes, if you want a light cocoa-brown cake with a spongy texture as a change of pace. Bit O' Chocolate Cake is elegant, with fewer calories than most because its base is eggs rather than shortening. Find the cake and frosting recipes included here.

CHOCOLATE RAISIN BREAD

One 6-oz. pkg. semi-sweet morsels
6 T. butter
2 1/2 c. unsifted flour
1 t. baking powder
1 t. baking soda
1 t. salt
1 egg
1 1/2 c. milk
1/2 c. sugar
1 t. vanilla extract
1 c. raisins
1 c. coarsely chopped nuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Melt over hot (not boiling) water, morsels and butter; stir until morsels melt and mixture is smooth. Remove from heat; set aside. In small bowl, combine flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt; set aside. In large bowl, beat egg, milk, sugar and vanilla extract. Add chocolate mixture. Gradually stir in flour mixture by hand just until moistened. Stir in raisins and nuts. Pour into greased 9x5 inch loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 65 to 70 minutes. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pan. Cool completely.

CHOCOLATE CHILI

2 T. vegetable oil
1 chopped onion
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 lb. ground beef
1 16-oz. can kidney beans, drained
1 16-oz. can tomato puree

16-oz. can tomato paste
One 4-oz. can chopped green chili peppers, seeded and drained
1/2 c. water
2 oz. Nestle Choco-bake divided
2 T. chili powder
1 T. beef-flavored instant bouillon
Heat oil in a large skillet; add onion and garlic and saute until tender. Add ground beef; cook over medium heat until meat is evenly browned. Drain off excess fat. Stir in beans, tomato puree, tomato paste, chili peppers, water, 1 envelope Choco-bake, chili powder and bouillon; mix well. Simmer uncovered 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in remaining Choco-bake and heat through. Serve with corn chips or over hot rice.

Cook's Question Corner

ANSWER - For Glenn Miller of Honesdale who requested information on handling sausage, scrapple or puddings when butchering a pig, comes this information from Mrs. J. Hoover of Stevens: "Send 25 cents to: Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25 D.C. and ask for the pamphlet 'Slaughtering, Cutting and Processing Pork on the Farm.' I saw the address in a monthly magazine last year."

ANSWER - For Christene Jefferson who says she traditionally cans too many tomatoes, comes two recipes to use them up! She and other readers can find them at the end of the recipe section above. Thanks go to Carol Ulrich from Allenwood and Martin Roy of Warrenton, Va.

MORE FOR LESS.

The Storage System for the future. Here Now!

THE AG-BAG SYSTEM

MORE FEED. MORE STORAGE. MORE HIGH QUALITY TDN & PROTEIN.

Select from three models of AG-BAG Machines. Motorized, Hydraulic, and Gear-Driven. AG-BAG lets you match the machine to your job. Big or small. Whether you're DAIRY or BEEF AG-BAG will store More For Less. The AG-BAG System. Air-tight storage with more versatility than any other system. Just look at these AG-BAG ADVANTAGES:

1. UNLIMITED oxygen-limiting storage
2. Storage for ALL forages & grain

3. Transportable
4. Easy to use and little maintenance
5. NO dangerous silo gases
6. Silo fires WON'T occur
7. Higher moisture forage
8. NO unloader to break down
9. Extra income and potential from custom bagging
10. THE Forage System for the 80's

JUST LISTEN TO WHAT THESE AG-BAG BELIEVERS HAVE TO SAY:

Kenneth Popham of Floresville, Texas

Kenneth runs a 465 cow Dairy and said this about AG-BAG: "At today's interest rates you can't afford any other type of storage. . . Even with the yearly cost of bags it's still inexpensive storage. . . a whole lot cheaper than building barns and hiring help. I put up 13 bags last year and after seeing the results, I'll put up 25 bags this year. The bags are a good thing."

Don Carter of Parkdale, Oregon

"The best move I ever made" . . . says Don Carter in reference to his switch to bagging silage on his dairy near Parkdale, Oregon.

"I get 18% more feed from the same acreage and the feed lasts three times as long. I used to clean my bunks after three days, now I only need to clean them after 10 days."

Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska

"In addition to everything else, it's a management tool". . . says rancher, Roland Rasmussen of Blair, Nebraska

Roland farms 350 acres west of Blair, Nebraska, and fattens about 650 cattle from 600 lbs. to finish

"By labeling every bag as to date and kind of feed, I can mix my feeds and eliminate the guess work in making a ration. I feed alfalfa silage, corn silage and ground ear corn stored exclusively in the bags, purchasing only my minerals and vitamin supplements"

"The AG-BAG system has enabled me to increase carrying capacity per acre at a reduced cost of gain"

Bert Anderson of Sceptre, Saskatchewan

"At least 30% more feed. . . I can guarantee at least that" . . . says rancher, Bert Anderson, of Sceptre, Saskatchewan.

"I've been able to cut my grain feeding costs in half since converting to the bagging. It's just like feeding grass. I've also eliminated the need for a liquid supplement that we always fed before going to the AG-BAG System. . ."

HERE'S WHAT THE AG-BAG SYSTEM CAN DO FOR YOU

BIT O' CHOCOLATE CAKE

Cake:

6 eggs, separated
1 c. granulated sugar
1 sq. unsweetened chocolate, grated
1 t. vanilla extract
3/4 c. sifted cake flour
1 t. baking powder

1/4 t. salt

Filling and Frosting:

1 1/2 t. unflavored gelatin
6 T. cold water
1 1/2 c. whipped cream
3 T. powdered sugar
1 t. vanilla extract
chopped pecans, if desired

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. For cake, line two 9-inch round cake pans with waxed paper; butter, paper and sides of pan. Beat egg whites in large mixing bowl on high speed of mixer until soft peaks form.

Gradually add sugar. Continue beating until stiff. Fold in chocolate. Beat egg yolks in small mixing bowl on high speed of mixer until thick and lemon colored. Fold egg yolk mixture into egg white mixture; fold in vanilla. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add dry ingredients in thirds to egg mixture, folding gently after each addition. Divide batter evenly between 2 pans. Bake 20 to 25 minutes, or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Let cool in pans 10 minutes. Remove to wire racks to cool completely. For filling and frosting, sprinkle gelatin over water to soften. Heat over low heat, stirring constantly, until dissolved. Cool to room temperature. Whip cream until stiff peaks form. Fold in sugar and vanilla, then gelatin mixture. Spread filling between layers, on top and sides of cake. Sprinkle top with chopped pecans. Refrigerate until ready to serve or overnight.

2 qt. canned tomatoes, cut up
2 t. salt
1 t. Italian seasoning
1 t. oregano leaves

1 envelope Spatini spaghetti sauce mix
1 6-oz. can tomato paste
oregano to taste
salt and pepper

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

As we traveled East we stopped each day to see one or two places of interest. Thus we spent one afternoon and evening at Salt Lake City, Utah.

While there we took a walking tour through the Temple Square. The majestic six-spined Temple dominates the lavish grounds of this 10-acre site. We heard the Mormon Tabernacle Choir sing in the evening and we examined the religious exhibits in the North and South Visitor Centers. They spent a lot of time explaining their origin from their sailing to the Americas as the ancestors of the American Indian, to the translating of the plates of gold that they say Joseph Smith dug up near Palmyra, N.Y.

We also spent time looking through the largest genealogical library in the world. The tour of Brigham Young's 1853 house, (he succeeded Smith as leader of the Mormons) was quite interesting. It was his official family residence but the "Lion House" next door was not open to the public. Here is where his 27 wives and 51 children lived. The flower surrounding the public buildings were absolutely gorgeous. On our way out of town that night we saw a grass fire that had just been started by a bolt of lightning.

We visited a museum in western Colorado devoted to the Ute Indians, prairie flowers and animals. It was over 100 degrees as we drove through Pike National Forest and later stopped to go through the "Cave of Winds" at Manitou Springs in Colorado. Walking in the large cave was anticlimactic to the torturous climb up a narrow hairpin-curved road to its entrance in a car whose motor got overheated.

York Sheep Producers to hold family picnic

Reservations are due to Norwood McGuigan, Felton R3, by we stopped at Abilene to see the Eisenhower chapel, library and home. Then we drove through flat land with small oil wells in the middle of harvested wheat fields. Their fence posts were slabs of limestone set up many years ago.

The last two days we drove over 1000 miles through Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, W. Virginia, Maryland and finally arrived in Pennsylvania. We had blue skies and sunshine every day of our trip, but even so, we were glad to be home.

August 15. Cost of tickets is $5 for adults, $2.50 for children 6-12, with youngsters under age 5 served free.

The York County Fiddler's grounds is located off Route 74, south of Red Lion. Signs will be posted to the picnic site.

Montgomery Co. slates 4-H fair

NORRISTOWN — Where can sheep, goats, rabbits, dairy cows and other animals be found with vegetables, flowers and clothing? Why, only at the Montgomery County 4-H Fair being held August 18 to August 21 on the grounds of the 4-H Center, Snyder Road, Lansdale.

County Agent Paul Reber states that 4-H members throughout the county will be exhibiting their projects for the public starting with the 4-H Dairy Show at 10:30 a.m. on Wednesday, August 18. See if you can pick the winning animals that will compete at the regional show later in the month.

Then come back to watch the 4-H Sheep club members at 6 p.m. on Thursday, August 19 show their animals to the judge. At 7 p.m. the horse ring will be very active with horse grooming and showmanship activities.

Be prepared that evening to move out of the way as 4-H'ers bring steers, goats, rabbits and covies for their own shows during the next two days. At the same time the main building will be filling up with crafts, food entries, vegetables, flowers, woodworking, rockets, models and other projects which can be seen by everyone on Friday, August 20 between the hours of 4 to 9 p.m.

However, if you enjoy watching meat on the hoof check out the 4-H Steer Show at 2 p.m. that day under the big tent. And do not forget the 4-H Dog Show at 7 p.m. or the Seeing Eye Puppy demonstration at 7:30 p.m. on that Friday.

Laugh at the large animal dress-up contest for 4-H members only at 8 p.m. and pick your favorite during the parade of club banners at 8:30 p.m.

Saturday, August 21 opens with the 4-H Goat Show at 9:30 a.m. and the 4-H Rabbit and Cavy Show at 10 a.m. If you have not viewed the projects in the building 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. is the time. Do not overlook the imagination of youth at 2 p.m. as they parade their special friend in the small pet contest. Prizes await the boys and girls who want to participate in the Fun Olympics at 3:30 p.m. while model rockets are sent skyward, weather permitting, around 4:30 p.m.

A puppet show and horse costume contest at 7 p.m. conclude the 1982 4-H Fair. For all of these events, there is no admission charge. Food and beverages are available on the grounds. Special baked goods are being offered for sale on Friday and Saturday.

The 4-H club program is offered by the Cooperative Extension Service of Penn State University. For further information on this outstanding youth organization call 215-277-0574.

EFNEP program tours food site

In an effort to instill food appreciation into the minds of city youths, the county 4-H program recently took 26 4-H'ers from two clubs to several food processing and producing sites. At a Pensupreme stop, the youths learned how milk and ice cream is handled and tested before being served to the public. At the Norman Kolb farm, above, 4-H'ers had a chance to pet and feed calves and tour a dairy farm. Other stops on the agenda were Oregon Dairy, Cherry Hill Orchard, Pizza Hut and Burger King. According to Mary Kay Miller, Summer assistant at the county 4-H office, "All of these have been added extra to the summer EFNEP program. It has helped the children to become more aware of how food arrives on our plates. Hopefully it will make the 4-H'ers more appreciative of the food they eat."

HOW TO IMPROVE EGGSHELL QUALITY WITH GENSTAR PURE REEF OYSTER SHELL

The addition of 110 lbs. (50 kilos) of oyster shell per ton of feed will furnish your layers with the supplemental calcium needed for strong eggshells.

One recent study compared oyster shell and limestone as large particle calcium supplements. Birds on oyster shell increased production, had fewer checked and cracked eggs, and reduced the amount of feed required per dozen eggs.

Another recent study concluded that calcium from oyster shell, in any form, is more available than that of limestone for eggshell formation.

And still more proof comes from chemical analyses of blood plasma. Hens fed oyster shell show consistently higher levels of calcium during the critical period of eggshell formation when it's most needed.

Oyster shell can make a big difference in your egg check. Please call or write The Fox Co. for additional information.

Genstar Pure Reef Oyster Shell is distributed by The Fox Company, Newfield, NJ 08344. Phone 800/257-7022 or 609/692-4400.

Grange leadership school focuses on 'growing better'

HUNTINGDON — To the more than 250 Grange members attending State Grange Leadership School at Juniata College last weekend, like agriculture in Pennsylvania, the Grange is "growing better."

The State Grange adopted the Department of Agriculture's theme for this year's conference, which focuses on leadership training for Grange officers and members.

"The Grange is growing better in Pennsylvania," State Master Charles Wismer told members in an opening speech. "We're growing better in membership, in legislative success, and in services for our members."

Throughout the weekend, Grange members participated in workshops on such subjects as motivation, working with committees, public speaking and developing strong Grange policy. Some of these workshops were led by outside speakers from Juniata College and Penn State University.

Guest speakers from the Leadership Banquet held Saturday evening was Fran Fisher, assistant athletic director at Penn State University. Known as the "voice of Penn State football" for his colorful radio football coverage, Fisher talked on the "total program" at the University.

"Success in each program at Penn State, such as sports, music and also agriculture, reflect positively on the University as a whole," he said.

At the banquet, a first place trophy in the State Grange youth volleyball championship was presented to a team from Washington County. Statewide eliminations had been held during the leadership seminar.

During the conference, Wismer announced that the State Grange will focus on local leadership training in the next Grange year.

"The State Grange will work with officers in local Granges to develop strong leadership in rural Pennsylvania," he said.

Darlene Musser is Lancaster Poultry Queen

LANCASTER — Eighteen-year-old Darlene Musser is the 1982 Lancaster County Poultry Queen, crowned in ceremonies last Friday night at the Farm and Home Center.

Darlene is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Musser, R1 Mount Joy who owns 125,000 layers and have their own egg processing plant. Darlene does the bookkeeping for the egg operation.

First runner-up was Sara Plowfield, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Plowfield, 636 Lincoln Road, Lititz. Sara is an employee of the Victor Weaver Company.

There were six contestants in the annual event sponsored by the Lancaster County Poultry Association and chaired by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mowrer, Columbia.

Each contestant was required to give a promotional talk before the audience, and Darlene spoke in rhyme, encouraging mothers to look to poultry products when they need menu ideas.

In part, the new Queen said: 'Eggs, higher in protein than any other food you can buy, contain all vitamins except C so their nutrition is very high. And for those watching their weight eating eggs is very wise. For only 80 calories are in an egg of large size.'

Darlene said later that the idea came to her one night about 11 o'clock. She wrote two verses that night and the remaining ones came to her the next day. She said the hardest part in creating the promotion was "getting started."

Sara's promotion was extolling the virtues of chicken hot dogs.

A 1981 graduate of Donegal High School, Darlene will begin Lancaster Bible College in September where she will major in elementary education. Because of her interest in children, she is looking forward to making appearances in elementary school as Poultry Queen.

In high school, Darlene was a member of the National Honor Society, the band, color guard, chorus, dramatics club, tennis team and was athletic trainer for wrestling.

Darlene was crowned by retiring queen LaVon Fuhrman, who had to fight back tears as she said her farewell and thank you for a "very special year."

Other contestants were Deanna Cravens, 20; Wanda Hershey, 17; Judy Miller, 16; and Heidi Stauffer, 18. As part of the evening's program the contestants did a dance routine in prairie skirts they had made themselves.

They also gave out pens to each person in attendance as part of their opening number.

Chairman of the County Commissioners, Robert Boyer, read a proclamation adopted by the Board of Commissioners proclaiming August as "Poultry Month" in recognition of the importance of Lancaster County's Poultry industry.

Judges for the event were Sally Bair, Lancaster Farming; M.M. Smith, retired county agent; and John Weidman, Pioneer HyBred Seeds.

Grover Gouker, Jr., was master of ceremonies and entertainment was provided by James Boyd and Glenn Smith.

Earlier in the summer all the contestants were given a tour of the county court house and the county prison to help them learn more about the county. — S.B.

Darlene Musser, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Musser of R1 Mount Joy was crowned Lancaster County's new poultry Queen at ceremonies held last Friday night at the Farm and Home Center. Alternate titles went to Sara Plowfield, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Plowfield.

Cattle gain better on treated alfalfa

BELTSVILLE, Md. — Holstein steers gained twice as much weight when fed alfalfa silage treated with formaldehyde and formic acid as when fed untreated feed according to USDA scientist Dale R. Waldo.

Waldo, of USDA's Agricultural Research Service, explained experiments include freshly cut alfalfa stored without and with a mixture of .13% formaldehyde and .15% formic acid. Cattle fed the untreated silage gained an average of 471 grams (1.0 pounds) daily. Those fed the formaldehyde and formic acid-treated silage gained an average of 956 grams (2.10 pounds) daily.

Waldo, a research nutritionist, observed that formaldehyde protects protein in the silage from being broken down by bacterial and natural chemical action. This preserves more protein for the cattle to digest. When a solution of formaldehyde is sprayed on silage, part of the chemical is bound to be the protein in the silage. The stronger acid of the cow's stomach frees the protein from the formaldehyde for digestion and the formaldehyde is metabolized by the cow.

The second additive, formic acid, protects carbohydrates in the feed. Its use on silage has been approved by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). The use of formaldehyde on silage, however, has not yet been approved by the FDA. Waldo indicated that additional tests are needed to prove its safety.

Balance studies by research nutritionist Henry Tyrrell, a colleague of Waldo's at USDA's Animal Science Institute in Beltsville, MD, showed that animals feed the treated silage retained more nitrogen than those on the other diet. The findings indicate, he said, that they converted more of their feed into lean body tissue than did the other group of cattle.

Treatment of silage with formaldehyde is economically feasible on small farms as well as in large farming operations, Waldo said. (Formaldehyde costs about 16 cents a pound). The need for feed supplements such as corn and soybean meal is reduced when formaldehyde-treated silage is used.

Nearly 500 entries overwhelm Morrisons Cove Dairy Show

BY PATTY GROSS
Staff Correspondent

MARTINSBURG — Nearly 500 entries walked into the show ring during the 32nd annual Morrisons

Cove Dairy Show for the four days of competition, August 2-6.

Most of the entries were from Blair, Bedford and Huntingdon counties, with some competitors traveling even farther.

The FFA show was the first event. Obie Snyder, owner of Singing Brook Farm, Imler, Bedford County, served as type judge. Working at placing the FFA exhibitors for fitting and showmanship was Lori Sollenberger, Ralaine Jerseys of Everett, Bedford County.

The second day of competition was 4-H show day. Past president of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, George Bridenbaugh of Marcove Farm, Martinsburg, served as type judge. Richard Little, Montour County Extension agent, selected winners for the top fitting and showman awards.

The third of the four shows at the Martinsburg Memorial Park was the Open Colored Breed show. The annual event was concluded with the Open Holstein judging.

Al Celestine of Elsvie Farms, Scenery Hill, Washington County, judged the colored breeds. A Holstein breeder from Elizabethtown, Lancaster County, Robert Kauffman of Penn Springs

Ken Mowry, Roaring Spring, showed the Grand Champion Holstein, Bel-Aura Happy Elm Tree, to conclude the 32nd annual Morrisons Cove Dairy Show. Mowry says the aged cow has captured Grand Champion honors at least five times in the past.

standing Grand Champion Ayrshire exhibitor Lucinda Bradley; Elaine Benson, Grand and Reserve Champion Milking Shorthorn; and Becky Greenleaf, Champion Holstein in the 4-H show.

Dairy show officials say this year's show was bigger than last year's, awarding nearly $7,000 in premiums.

The week of competition came to a close as an aged cow, shown by Ken Mowry and his son Steve of Roaring Spring topped all others in the final event. Bel-Aura Happy Elm Tree walked away as Senior Champion and was later selected as Grand Champion. The Mowry's also took first place with the daughter-dam pair.

Close behind Mowry's during the Holstein event was Burket Falls Farm, East Freedom, which had dominated much of the competition till that point. Burket Falls Shalena View captured the judge's eye for the Reserve Senior Champion and Reserve Grand Champion.

The Burkets were also awarded premier breeder, premier exhibitor, senior get-of-sire, produce of dam, exhibitors herd a best three females.

The entry by Luke Bowser, R1 New Enterprise, Singing-Brook Pete Billie A, took the Junior Champion in the Holstein open show. Allenor Holstein Farms, R4 Bedford, came in close behind with the Reserve Champion.

In the open colored breed show, John Burket of R1 East Freedom showed two other winners. His Brown Swiss and Jersey walked out of the show ring with grand champion ribbons. He previously exhibited a grand champion Holstein in the 4-H show.

The winner's circle was a popular place for Beth Clark of R2 Bedford. As a winning 4-H exhibitor earlier in the week, she won again in the open Guernsey class. She was awarded the grand champion ribbons both times.

Winning looked easy for Rob and Sharon Nolan, Cochranville, and their five-year-old Ayrshire. The Grand Champion and Senior Champion honors were awarded to them during the open show.

William Henley, Cochranville, who showed the Grand Champion in that breed during the FFA competition, won the Reserve Grand Champion Ayrshire title of the open class.

The Henley family of Cochranville, Chester County, brought champion Ayrshires to the 32nd Morrisons Cove Dairy Show. They took home a number of ribbons and received trophies for the grand and reserve champions in the FFA show. William Henley also captured the reserve grand champion during the open colored breed show.

The FFA Grand Champion Holstein honors in the Morrisons Cove Dairy Show went to Henry Hall of R1 Hopewell. His sister, Tina Hall poses with the champion black and white.

The Grand Champion, Senior Champion, and Colored Breed Champion during the 4-H competition at the Morrisons Cove Dairy Show was awarded to Burket Falls Farm's Brown Swiss. Keith Fisher from East Freedom poses with the animal.

Holstein - Henry Hall III, R1 Hopewell;

Ayrshire - Kennard Henley III, R1 Cochranville;

Brown Swiss - Keith Cochenour, R3 Somerset;

Guernsey - Curtis Feathers, Imler;

Jersey - Lisa Harnish, R1 Alexandria;

Holstein - Betsy Stitt, R1 Martinsburg;

Ayrshire - William Henley, R1; Brown Swiss - Richard Eastep, R2 Williamsburg;

Guernsey - Curtis Feathers, Imler;

Jersey - McConnellsburg FFA, McConnellsburg;

FFA Master Fitter and Showman - Elizabeth Smith, Roaring Spring.

Colored Breed Champion - John Burket, R1 East Freedom;

Ayrshire - Lucinda Bradley, R1 Martinsburg;

(Turn to Page B24)

Gina Hall of Hopewell, Bedford County, showed her Jersey to win the Grand Champion 4-H award. She also was awarded a rosette for the Reserve Grand Champion.

Curtis Feathers of Imler dominated the Guernsey class during the FFA competition at the Morrisons Cove Dairy Show. His entries took grand and reserve grand champion.

Fruit or Vegetable?

How do you tell the difference between a fruit and a vegetable?

Or, why is a tomato a fruit and not a vegetable?

It's not easy. For instance, everyone knows that an orange is a fruit. And some people know that a tomato is a fruit and not a vegetable, although many people think it's both. But very few people know that peppers, eggplants and cucumbers are as much fruits as are peaches, pears and pineapples, because almost everyone will tell you they are vegetables.

"The reason there is so much confusion over the two is because there are three definitions instead of two," says C. Marshall Ritter, professor of horticulture at Penn state. There are two definitions for fruit, a common definition and a scientific or botanical definition, and one definition, a common definition for vegetable.

The common definition of vegetable is a plant that usually is grown as an annual, usually eaten cooked, and usually eaten with the meal instead of an addition to it.

There are exceptions, says Ritter. Rhubarb is considered a vegetable but it usually is eaten in addition to the meal, as rhubarb pie, which is how it earned the nickname pie plant. Rhubarb is also found in fruit catalogues, but it's not a fruit. The pepper is another food with a double identity. It can be cooked, making it a vegetable or eaten raw in a salad before a meal, making it a fruit.

What then is a fruit? the common definition says it is something that is usually grown as a perennial, but not always, usually eaten fresh, not cooked, and usually eaten in addition to the meal rather than with the meal.

Raspberries are biennials and not perennials. The apple is another misfit. It can be eaten fresh or cooked as apple sauce and eaten with the meal. But that doesn't make an apple a vegetable.

The botanical or scientific definition of fruit is more clear. By this definition, a fruit is a ripened ovary with accessory parts usually containing seeds. This explains why tomatoes, green beans, peppers, cucumbers and eggplants are fruits as well as vegetables.

Today the fruit most commonly mistaken for a vegetable comes from a history of confusion. For a long time, many thought the tomato was poisonous, while the French thought it to be an aphrodisiac.

And the potato, called the "pomme de terre" by the French, leads almost as confusing a life as the tomato, the "pomme d'amour." The potato, which no would suspect to be fruit and naturally assumes it

WILMINGTON, Del. — The University of Delaware is offering a horse science course to be held Sept. 16 to Oct. 21.

Entitled "Understanding Equine Lameness," the course will explain the interrelated roles of conformation, nutrition, training, conditioning, work, foot-trimming and shoeing, environmental factors and medical treatment affecting the incidence of lameness.

Horse owners, trainers and breeders will be taught how to prevent, heal, and manage lameness. The course will be held for six weeks on Thursday evening from 7:30 to 10 at Clayton Hall, Newark. The instructor for the course will be Dr. Joseph Haines, DVM of Fairhill Equine Veterinary Clinic, Fairhill, Md.

For more information on the course, contact Edwin Crispin, assistant director of Continuing Education at the University of Delaware, 2800 Pennsylvania Avenue, Wilmington, DE 19806, telephone 302/738-8151.

Delaware offers horse lameness course

So, how do you tell the difference between a fruit and a vegetable?

Ritter and his fellow plant scientists stand by their definitions, and argue that they should be kept apart. Nutritionists, on the other hand, will tell you there's very little difference between the two and they have fought to keep them together.

Fruits and vegetables, nutritionists say, contain similar vitamins and minerals which is why they lump them together to make up one of the famous four basic food groups.

To a nutritionist, it doesn't matter what you call a tomato or a potato, as long as you eat it.

Linde outlines South African Guernsey trip

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

CLEAR SPRING, Md. — Franklin County Guernsey breeders have found a delicious way to make a dent in their milk surplus and, at the same time, provide one of the highlights of their annual summer barn meeting. While this year's event, held Aug. 6 included the traditional guest speaker and judging contest, interest also was centered on the refreshment area with ten freezers of home-made ice-cream containing five different flavors.

Hosting the event was the Seth K. Schnebly family, Crown Stone Guernseys, Clear Spring, Md. Seth, a former National Director on the Board of the American Guernsey Cattle Club, noted that the farm is a family operation which includes his sons, William and John and their wives. Their 45 registered cows have a rolling herd average of 13,600 pounds of milk and 620 pounds of butterfat and have collected a number of championship rosettes with their excellent type. The herd has been classified regularly at 18-month intervals for the past 20 years.

Breeders were given a chance to judge that excellent type on the hoof with two classes of milk cows to place during the evening. Topping the judging competition were Robert Eckstein and Laban Garber, both scoring perfect scores in the adult division, and Nancy Myers and Crystal Benedict, placing first and second respectively in the junior division.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mille Linde, of Oxford, who spoke to the group about her travels to South Africa last March as one of five delegates from the United States who attended the Fourth World Guernsey Conference. The theme of the conference, according to Linde, was how to increase the profitability of the Guernsey cow to the individual farmer.

Linde described the customs and traditions of the apartheid society where a minority of 17 percent of the population controls all forms of business and monetary wealth

One highlight of the trip was attending the county's National Guernsey Show which is held bi-annually. Linde noted that show practices are very different in South Africa. While the cattle are washed for the show, they are not clipped, bagged, or fitted for the show in any other manner. Only the farm owners are permitted to show the animals and women are barred from entering the showring. The cattle are exhibited at their natural gait and are not even posed for pictures, according to Linde. The first-place animal receives a yellow ribbon followed by red for second place and blue for third place.

Linde pointed out that South African Guernseys have greatly benefitted from the genetic improvements imported via frozen semen from the United States. However, A.I. technicians are a rear breed in that country because of the great distances between the 100-200 cow herds. Herd owners do all their own inseminating, plus most of their own veterinarian work for the same reason.

Linde observed that there appears to be fewer health problems in their dairy cattle due to their feed management practices. Since the climate of South Africa is not conducive to either growing corn or storing ensiled feeds, pasture grazing makes up the major feedstuff in the dairy cow's diet. Cows must walk three to five kilometers daily to graze the lush South African pastures.

Price or Value?

There's a big difference — whether it's a feed or anything else you buy.

We've never cut corners to make a feed cheap — in its quality or its selling price per ton.

Instead, we make all MoorMan products to high-quality, high-performance standards in each step all the way through research, formulation, ingredient selection and manufacturing.

For example, superconcentrated MoorMan's® Premix-trate® products for hogs fully fortify soybean meal and grain to make a wide variety of rations for top performance and economical feeding results.

Total feed cost to do a job, we're convinced, is more important than the price per ton you pay for a small part of your total ration.

Alpines team-up in county's first 'goat-cart'

The team's tack is a miniature version of that worn by their equine cousins, right down to the bit.

LANCASTER — When Charlie and Freda Myers visited Nashville, Tenn. two years ago, they saw something which really got their goat.

The Lancaster couple, while attending the 1980 National Holstein Convention, spied a matched pair of goats, trained to pull a small wagon. To Charlie's knowledge, the team is the only broken driving pair in the nation.

Grandpas will be grandpas and Charlie couldn't resist the idea of presenting his grandsons, Charlie Adcock, 7, and Taylor Scott, 17 months, with their very own "goat-cart."

He purchased the team of Alpines and told the ex-owner he'd send a truck down to pick them up someday. Two years later, Melvin Hostetter was returning from Florida with an empty trailer and stopped off in Nashville to pick up the pair.

On their first night in Lancaster County, the goats (known to their friends as "Charlie and Freda,") shared accommodations with "Misty," a palomino pony who lives at Hostetter Hauling along the Manheim Pike.

The next day, Hostetter spent about 20 minutes snapping and buckling the miniature yokes, bridles and harnesses. The Myers' grandchildren, along with a few friends, arrived in time to test drive the eight-legged wonder.

The combination of Charlie Adcock piloting the reins with a few quick snaps and numerous "gitty-ups" and whistles from bystanders, did indeed provoke forward motion from the pair. As the youngsters made their way across Hostetter's front lawn, motorists passing by the scene probably reached for the eye drops.

While many youngsters will grow up with the thrill of racing around in go-carts, there's at least four Lancaster County children that will long remember their experience in the nation's only "goat cart." — DT

Melvin Hostetter readies the trained team Lancaster County debut with their custom-made yoke just before their

It may not be how the pioneers forged westward, but these youngsters think their "goat-cart," is a perfect way to spend a summer afternoon. The passengers include, from l to r: Taylor Scott, 17 months; Nicki Ebersole, 3; Tanya Adcock, 19 months; and Charlie Adcock, 7, with the reins.

Although a little coaxing was necessary the Alpine pair marched the length of Hostetter's lawn along the Manheim Pike and caused a few double-takes for passing motorists.

Huber is Outstanding Commissioner

LANCASTER — County Commissioner James E. Huber has been named the Outstanding Conservation Commissioner by the State Association of Conservation Districts.

The award is given each year to recognize the county commissioner who is most effective in strengthening the local conservation district and its programs, said State Conservation District spokesman Ben Moyer.

Huber was honored for his work with farmland preservation, especially his role as a founding member of the Agricultural Preserve Board.

In addition, Huber was selected for his efforts to help fund local conservation, his help with the district's annual tree seedling sale and his efforts to resolve erosion problems.

Huber will receive the award, August 11, in Downingtown at a statewide meeting of county commissioners.

Among scholarship winners at the FFA National Leadership Conference in Washington, D.C. was Bill MacCauley, of the Octorara Chapter, Chester County. He is receiving plaque from Melanie Burgess, National FFA Vice-President from the Eastern region.

Ginder places second in speaking

MANHEIM — Gail Ginder, senior at Manheim Central High School, competed in a Tri-State Speaking Contest at Penn State on August 4.

Representing the vocational agriculture students of Pennsylvania, she competed in FFA Extemporaneous Public Speaking against contestants from the states of Ohio and New York.

In the competition she had to draw three agricultural related topics from a box and choose one to present. She was then given 30 minutes to prepare the speech of four to six minutes long.

Ginder spoke on the topic, "Characteristics of an effective leader." She related this topic to how an FFA member can strive to be an effective leader.

Ginder placed second in the contest, with Leroy Billman, of Ohio, taking first.

Members of the Octorara FFA Chapter who attended Washington Conference Program include Mark Stoltzfus, left, and Dave Blank. Blank is the son of Elam and Dorothy Blank, of Parkesburg; and Stoltzfus is the son of Raymond Stoltzfus, also of Parkesburg.

Attending the National FFA Leadership Conference is Randy Scott Erb, of the Northern Lebanon Chapter. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim A. Erb, Jr., of Lebanon, he is greeted by John Pope, right, National FFA Secretary.

Pasture-livestock field day coming to s.w. Pa.

UNIVERSITY PARK
— Pasture systems for cow-calf herds and backgrounding stocker cattle on high-quality pastures will be highlights of a Pasture-Livestock Field Day, September 2, at Penn State's Southwestern Field Research Laboratory, located near Rector in the Ligonier Valley off Route 711.

William C. Stringer, assistant professor of agronomy and project leader of the pasture-livestock program, says research and extension workers will be available to demonstrate and discuss many different aspects of managing pastures and livestock for more efficient production.

Wagon tours of the research pastures and plots will start at noon. Visitors will have an opportunity to examine pastures on different types of soil and of different mixes, including warm-season grasses and tall fescue.

Different types of fencing and watering facilities for cattle will be demonstrated at another stop on the tour. Specialists also will outline grazing management programs.

Hay harvesting, storage and feeding demonstrations will be held near the farm headquarters. And for those interested in improving their livestock breeding programs, specialists will discuss estrus synchronization and artificial as well as natural breeding programs.

Stringer says tours and demonstrations will be held from noon to about 5:00 p.m. At 5:30 p.m. there will be a corn boil sponsored by the Westmoreland County Cattlemen's Association. Meal reservations can be made by sending a $3 check to the Westmoreland County Extension Fund, F.O. Box 250, Greensburg, PA 15601.

Royal Haven Farm, owned by Lynn and Bonnie Miller, recently hosted a group of Master Farmers touring Bradford County. Joining the Holstein breeders is Bradford County Dairy Princess Valerie Moon.

Master farmers tour Bradford Co.

TOWANDA — Bradford County was honored to host the annual Master Farmer Picnic, Saturday, August 7. Seventy Master Farmers and wives from Pennsylvania and Maryland arrived early in the morning at the American Legion Home in Towanda to begin the day-long outing.

A tour by bus included the farms of former Bradford County Master farmers, Milford Kinsman and Richard Packard, both of East Troy. Each has a family dairy operation with outstanding registered Holstein herds.

A chicken barbecue was served to the crowd at the county part on Mt. Pisgah. Ted Keir, an Athens high school science teacher, an expert on local Indian lore, outlined the history of the Indians in the Bradford County area. He was delighted to meet Everett Weiser of Adams County, one of the guests whose ancestor, Conrad Weiser, was a missionary to the Indians in the 1700s, and passed through the Bradford County area.

During the afternoon the group was bused to the Royal Haven

Farm in French Asylum. Owners Lynn and Bonnie Miller breed and raise registered Holsteins, two of which made All-American in 1972 and 1978. They also enjoy success with embryo transplants from their excellent cows.

The Farmers also toured the famous French Asylum estate where the French Queen was supposed to have fled for safety during the French Revolution.

Dinner and entertainment in the evening at the Towanda Legion Home completed the day.

The committee of Bradford County former Master Farmers were Milford Kinsman, chairman, Alfred Durand, secretary and treasurer, Orton Mattocks, and Richard Packard, assisted by Orville Yoder, Bradford County Extension Agent. The committee was fulfilling a dream of the late John Brackman of Canton, a former Master Farmer, who wanted other Master Farmers to visit Bradford County. Paul Brackman, a son, represented his father at the affair. — JB

“Little guy” does big things in Thoroughbred business

Foundation animal for Paul Mills' successful Willow Tree Farms breeding is Captain, My Captain, at 15-years-old Thoroughbred sire still in steady demand for his durability and longevity.

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent
HELLAN — Willow Tree Farms is a picture-postcard scene come to life. Mirrored in the quiet pond are lush green pastures stretching off into the distance from immaculately swept drives and tidy buildings. Dark fences outline and accent the setting, framing the focal point of the farm operation: Thoroughbred horses.
What began as a hobby for former mobile home dealer Paul Mills, York, has evolved into a highly successful Thoroughbred breeding and racing business. In 1981, for the fifth year running, Mills topped all other breeders with his earnings of $43,531 from the Pennsylvania Breeding Fund.

In the late '50s, Mills expanded his Stony Brook Mobile Home Sales to a mobile home park in nearby Druck Valley. On a bit of Hopes for the racing and breeding future of Willow Tree Farms' Thoroughbreds lie in this year's crop of youngsters, more of the legacy of Captain, My Captain.

One of Willow Tree Farms' most promising untried yearlings is Captain Fire, a son of Captain.

Country Outings

and other brief escapes

All aboard to Paradise

For those of you who are endlessly searching for the road to Paradise, it may come as a surprise to learn that it is just east of Lancaster and in the form of a railroad track.

Well, though it may be an exaggerated and more tangible form of the famous 'road to Paradise' we all dream of finding, it is indeed a thoroughfare and it does lead to Paradise... Paradise, Pa., that is.

This 150-year-old right of way of the Strasburg Rail Road journeys through the heart of Lancaster County's Amish country, and could be a fun way to spend an afternoon with your family on a little country outing.

Only a tank of gas away for most of southern Pennsylvania and northern Maryland, it offers the adventure-seeker the opportunity to ride a train which has been authentically restored to its turn-of-the-century fame; complete with pot belly stoves, oil lamps, and plush seats.

Not only does the train offer to children the chance to ride on one of our fastest dying modes of transportation, but it offers the farmer a bit of nostalgia, also. For years, in its earlier days, this historic railroad connected the community of Strasburg with the nation's rail system providing freight service for the goods produced by local farmers.

If you're a movie buff, you could choose to ride in the open-observation coach which was used in filming 20th Century Fox's film, "Hello Dolly," starring Barbra Streisand.

Your tour will leave the Strasburg station and will ramble for 45 minutes, round trip, to the farming neighborhood of Paradise, passing through open lush green fields marked only by the farms that protect and operate them.

I would describe the trip as fun and a great way for the family to spend an afternoon together, though the cost may be the only deterrent to enjoying the ride; for adults (12 years and older) the price of this quick trip is $3.25 and for children, $1.50.

This eastbound train, known as Number 89, hauls tourists from the famous train station in Strasburg to Paradise, 4½ miles away, every day on the hour. For a farmer, the wide-eyed child, and the train buff, the ride offers a trip back into yesterday in 19th century coaches.

The train leaves the station every hour from 10 a.m. through 7 p.m. on weekdays and Saturdays. On Sundays, hours are noon to 7 p.m. After Labor Day, the rides end at 3 p.m. weekdays, and 4 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

When you return to the Strasburg station and you finally realize that only 45 minutes have passed, you may want, for another fee of $1.50, to visit the state operated Railroad Museum of Pennsylvania located next to the Strasburg Rail Road. The large museum houses huge locomotives and passenger cars from all over Pennsylvania — with the majority coming from Altoona and Chambersburg.

Or you may want to plan, beforehand, on extending the trip into a couple hours by packing a lunch and eating at Groff's Picnic Grove. This grove is only accessible by train, and is equipped with picnic tables, fireplaces, and drinking water. The train stops on its return trip each time, so if you decide to picnic here, you can simply catch the next train back to Strasburg.

Parking is free; and the company takes reservations for visiting groups. The station assures tourists that groups arriving 30 minutes prior to train time can almost always be accommodated without reservations.

If you're interested you can contact the Strasburg Rail Road Business office at P.O. Box 96, Strasburg, PA 17570. Phone (717) 687-7522.

'Alllll' aboard for Paradise!

IMPCO picnic-goers hear support price update

HOLTWOOD — Many dairy farmers still haven't reduced their herds, according to James Honan, Secretary and General Manager of Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative.

Speaking at the Lancaster area annual district picnic on Tuesday, Honan stated that the cooperative anticipates a 2.5 to 5 percent increase in the volume of milk marketed next year.

He indicated that farmers are not yet willing to cut production despite the surplus. Honan urged Inter-State members to contact their representative and senators to support the National Milk Producers Federation-sponsored Dairy Stabilization Plan, which is being debated in the U.S. House.

"We still feel that the Federation plan is a sound one," Honan said, adding that the NMFF plan will freeze supports at $13.10, where other proposals lower support to $12 per hundredweight.

Upon passage, the NMFF bill will move into the Senate Conference Committee.

vertising in order to meet the demands of the dairy surplus and fight the battle against imitation products.

About 500 people attended the picnic, held at Muddy Run State Park. Inter-State provided milk, cheese and ice cream. In addition, members' children were treated to a variety of games.

Oats eligible for reserve

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The 1981 and 1982 crops of oats now are eligible for immediate entry into the farmer-owned grain reserve because oat prices have fallen below a previously established level.

Everett Rank, administrator of the USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block last January authorized entry of 1982 crop feed grains into the reserve when national average market prices were at or below established levels.

Reserve regulations provide that a commodity may be placed in the reserve when the market price is below its reserve trigger release level. That level for oats is $1.65 per bushel, Rank said.

Farmers with 1981 crop oats under Commodity Credit Corporation loan and who place this grain in the reserve are eligible for a 7 cents-per-bushel higher loan rate and an advance 20 cents-per-bushel storage payment.

Producers of 1982 crop oats who place their grain in the reserve are eligible for an 18-cents-per-bushel higher loan as well as the 20 cents storage payment, he added.

The CCC Pennsylvania loan rate for 1981-crop oats is $1.42 per bushel. When this commodity is placed in the reserve, the loan rate is $1.49 per bushel.

Little guy does big things

spare acreage there, he put in a few horses for the family to ride. Equine interest whetted, Mills then acquired a couple of brood mares and began dabbling in the breeding business.

"We bought our first racehorse before we even attended a race, because a friend suggested it might be a good business," recalls the quiet-spoken, full-time horse breeder. That was in 1965. It was about a year until the Mills family had their first win, when their entry Gun Talk came in first in a race at Timonium.

In 1971, on the recommendation of his veterinarian, Mills claimed the four-year-old Captain, My Captain at a Pimlico "claiming race." Claiming races are one method of marketing young race horses, in which owners list a selling price on their entry. After the race, an interested buyer can "claim" the horse by paying the pre-stated price.

Captain, My Captain is Kentucky-bred, a son of Turn-To, out of a daughter of Double Jay. Most of Turn-To's offspring have proven to be good runners and breeders, and Captain was no exception.

The handsome, now-15-year-old sire, has proved to be a powerful transmitter of desirable characteristics, siring youngsters that both run and breed for long periods of time.

About 60 of his offspring, or about 86 percent, have raced, which Mills estimates probably puts Captain in the top fifth of the better racing sires.

His services continue to be steady demand by other thoroughbred breeders, and Captain recently saw his second heaviest season of use, servicing about 35 mares. Service fee is $500, which in Mills' opinion makes the well-proven stud one of the best values around.

Breeding season for the thoroughbreds runs from the beginning of March through June. Ideally, though, foals should be born soon after Jan. 1, since any animal born after that date is considered a yearling the following January. As two-year-olds, all race in the same age bracket, regardless of January or June birthdates.

Foals are weaned from three to six months of age, and go on the 14 percent protein feed custom mixed for Mills by Spangler and Sprenkle of York. Mills has switched from straight alfalfa hay, which he feels may be a bit rich for the equine system, to a forage of good-quality, mixed hay. Once mares foal, they are fed timothy hay.

Breeding back is on the nine-day return heat period after foaling, with about 25 to 30 percent of the mares settling back at the first service. Another 50 percent generally settle with the second heat in 20 days.

During the breeding season, more than one hundred mares are sometimes running in the 100-acres of pasture, split into several sections. About 50 head are in residence at Willow Tree Farms.

Mills' top priority in his breeding program is to continually upgrade his breeding stock, primarily using his own animals with practically no outside buying.

Captain's daughters are being crossed into a different blood line, using their farm's new stallion Con Man. All foals must be registered with the Jockey Club, out of New York, by Aug. 30 of the year they were born.

Education for the yearlings begins with Willow Tree Farm's resident trainer, Joe Whitehead, who also is in charge of exercising the youngsters around the 3/8 mile track on the farm each morning. The year's foal crop, usually about 15, begins their "classes" in September and continue in training through mid-November when they're turned out for the winter.

In March, their training begins again, until they're taken into residence at Penn National Race Track, Grantville in late spring for "further education." That includes introduction to such track amenities as the starting gate, plus learning to race with competitors.

Proven racers will go in stakes races, such as the Keystone at Penn National. One daughter of Captain, a seven-year-old named Count On Captain, is in her fifth year of racing and has earned $120,000. Last year, she took a second at the Keystone.

The entire Mills family is involved in the Thoroughbred business. Son Dennis trains the farm's 15 racing horses kept at the Grantville track on a regular basis. His wife Gwen also lends a hand. Daughter Kay is in charge of the bookkeeping, and Paul's wife, Pearl, assists at the track, is in charge of the brood mare barn and puts in extra hours during the foaling season.

"I just like to stay here and do the work at home," confesses Mills, who points with pride to the rolling green pastures that he keeps trimmed as neatly as a suburban lawn.

Mills' affability and accomplishments have earned him the respect of fellow equine breeders, who recently elected him vice president of the Pennsylvania Horse Breeders Association.

One of that group's prime goals is to have state legislators revamp the sale tax law to exempt their costs from the six percent levy. Horse breeders have battled for several years against the ruling that they're not considered agriculture and must continue to pay the sales tax on such major items as feed, tack, hay, and straw. Breeders are optimistic they will be effective in having the law changed, which would add incentive to keep race horse breeding farms in Pennsylvania and to bring in others.

Probably the biggest incentive for Pennsylvania breeding and foaling is the Pennsylvania Breeding Fund, which Mills has topped in winnings for the past five years. Pennsylvania races pay a premium to state-born animals, with the breeder getting 20 percent of the purse, and the stallion owner and present owner of the competing animal each claiming ten percent.

"Every little guy has a chance in the Thoroughbred business," is Mills' evaluation of the industry.

Cor-Lok™ Flooring has a corrugated surface which provides added strength while retaining the smooth surface desirable for broom sweeps and cleaning devices. Round perforations cover the entire width of the surface area.

Fan Transitions are available with pre-cut faceplates for all sizes of GSI fans when specified with an order. Ease of assembly and attachment to bin makes the transition a necessary item in the GSI air delivery system.

Flush Floor Aeration Systems are available for grain conditioning when a raised floor system is not desirable. Selected pieces can be combined to form "T", "I" and "U" shaped aeration layouts. All pieces bolt together and use a perforated corrugated sheet for covers.

Peak Collar Assembly and Cap has a 40 diameter opening standard on all GSI bins allowing greater air flow reducing the need for additional openings in the roof. 24 spreader ring comes as standard equipment.

Safety Ring comes standard with all GSI bins 18" to 48". Safety Ring Bracket ties Safety Ring to each roof panel forming a strong integral roof system. Bridging Ring comes standard with GSI bins 42" and 48" completing roof supporting system.

Roof Vent provides a large unobstructed opening to increase air movement through grain and eliminate excessive condensation deposits on the inside of the roof. Eliminates climbing on roof in bad weather conditions to open peak ring cap. Includes bird screen.

Channel-Lok Flooring is a newly refined flooring offering more openings than ever before. Interlocking joints provide strong, tight connections. Closer slotted extrusions mean more uniform air movement and strength.

Grand Stand™ Floor Supports for Cor Lok and Channel Lok floors. Fewer pieces and absence of rails makes installation easier. Snap-in Hooks hold support securely to the floor, preventing shifting when bin is empty and fan is on. Now with added opening for better under floor air flow.

Formed Flashing fits bin wall without field cutting. It can be used with all types of floor systems offered by GSI. It provides a smooth surface with less seams for more efficient operation of bin sweeps and cleaning devices.

Mono-Rail™ Floor Support is used to support corrugated floors and Channel Lok floors. Complete floor system available in various heights. Pieces snap together for fast and easy assembly. Spacing angles automatically set at 20" and 10" with no measuring needed.

2 Ring Bin Door is galvanized with corrugated flange for sure fit to the bin sidewall. Outer door is one piece galvanized for long life. Inner door with pressure action door latches independently opens into three sections.

Bin Door Step is an optional all weather slip resistant step. Unique perforated step means maximum traction in all weather situations. Makes for easy access to bin door.

Are grain growers destroying own market?

MORNING, Iowa — Grain growers are helping to destroy their markets when they turn their production over to a buyer for movement with a price to be determined later, warns a grain expert with National Farmers Organization.

The practice not only allows a continuous flow of grain that softens the market, but leaves the grower without security in case of elevator failure because no warehouse receipt is issued.

Frank Kraft, director of the NFO grain department, said the practice goes by a variety of names, including No Price Established, Price Later Agreement and Consignment Movement or Deferred Pricing.

Kraft said the price later agreements are being pushed by the large grain companies and the situation is aggravated because storage is in short supply this year.

Thus, when a farmer wants to have his grain stored to await higher prices, he is told that the storage is full and the grain will be accepted only on a cash basis or on deferred buying agreement.

Figuring the price will have to be better at some later date, the grower signs the agreement. At this point, he loses control over his own production.

"It all boils down to the same thing: Grain farmers are giving up title to their grain in return for someone taking it off their hands," Kraft said.

"Here's how it works. The farmer delivers grain unsold to an elevator or terminal, signs a document releasing title, and agrees to sell that elevator or terminal the grain at a later date.

"There may or may not be a service charge connected. No warehouse receipt is issued. And, the buyer or receiver can do anything he chooses with the grain.

"He can move it downstream, fill his own contracts, load ships or bake bread. In short, the buyer can use the grain just as if he had purchased it. This gives him the advantage of supply without investing a single dollar.

"He is thus out of the market and never even has to bid for a supply, which would provide support to grain prices. Fewer buyers are left to compete for grain, and operate on the grain grower's money without borrowed capital, and interest-free."

The farmer who ships grain under NPE agreement has lost all options. He cannot enter the grain into CCC loan or three-year reserve, because the grain is gone.

The grower loses the right to sell grain to another buyer. The NPE agreement usually has a selling deadline, giving the grower only a choice of what day within a limited time span to sell the grain. In the meantime, the steady flow of 'price later' grain depresses the market.

If the price moves against the buyer, and he is forced to pay higher prices than he sold for, the grower is exposed should bankruptcy result. The problem could be resolved by the grower retaining control of his grain until it is priced and sold. This would not only provide better protection to the grower, it would also force buyers to actively bid for the supply.

If machinery were delivered to a farmer under the same concept, the dealer couldn't take it back or sell elsewhere — he would have to take the price the farmer offers. No business could operate under those conditions. Neither can farmers.

Bank and Trust Company of Mifflinburg for $172.86.

Besides the champion steers, five other steers were auctioned off at the sale by members of the Mifflinburg FFA Chapter and the Union County 4-H Clubs. The owners and the buyers were as follows: The Reserve Champion 4-H market steer was owned by Patti Snook of R3 Mifflinburg and was sold to the Mifflinburg Farmers Exchange of Mifflinburg.

The Reserve Champion FFA steer was the highest priced steer of the sale. The 1165-pound steer, raised by Crystal Knechel, was purchased by Ezra Yoder for the Rock Oak Country Kitchen.

The lightest steer of the sale was owned by Andy Wagner. Andy's steer was purchased by Wayne Shively, the new owner of Shively's Meat Processing in Mifflinburg.

Rodney Walter's 1030-pound steer was purchased by Dean

Metzger for Metzger's Custom Butchering of Winfield, Pa.

The final steer of the sale was owned by Mike Zechman of Mifflinburg. The 1315-pound Angus crossbred steer was the largest steer and was purchased by Don Keister for Keister's Middleburg Auction.

A total of twenty market hogs were sold at the sale.

At the Union County West End Fair, Jeff Styers, right, earned the title of Reserve Champion Steer. Ray Gessner for Gessner Meats in Lewisburg purchased the steer for $773.55.

Rodney Walter, right, earned Grand Champion Market Hog honors at the Union County Fair. The hog brought $1,190 from Hatfield Packing Buying Center in Danville.

Barb Davis emerged from the ring with the honors of both Champion and Reserve Champion Market Lamb. Barb's 91-pound champion sold to Cliff Valentine, manager of the Lewisburg office of Farm Credit Service for $204.75.

York farmers plan plow-off

DOVER — Pennsylvania's most accomplished plow operators will converge on York County August 18 for their annual plow-off competition.

The state plowing competition is set to begin at 1 p.m. at the Sam Meisenhelder farm on South Salem Church Road. Entrants from York County will compete, beginning at 9 a.m., to represent the host county in the afternoon state runoffs.

Operators will vie for the titles in both small and large plow on level land, and in a separate contour plowing contest.

Several demonstrations of a variety of pieces of tillage equipment is on schedule, as well as day-long exhibit displays by participating agri-business firms.

Those attending the plowing competition can reach the Meisenhelder farm by following Route 74 north from Interstate 83, or Route 30. Turn left at Weiglestown on the Davidsburg Road, then left at South Salem Church Road. The host farm is approximately one mile beyond that turn, on the left.

Gettysburg to hold meeting for seasonal workers

PHILADELPHIA — A meeting open to workers, growers, farm labor contractors, interest groups and others wishing to comment on U.S. Labor Department services to migrant and seasonal farmworkers will be held Aug. 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the Convention Center of the Sheraton Inn, U.S. Route 15 South, in Gettysburg.

Sponsored by the Philadelphia regional office of the Labor Department, the meeting's purpose is to provide interested parties an opportunity to express their ideas or make recommendations on issues involving migrant and seasonal farm labor.

According to Charles M. Angell, the department's regional administrator for employment standards in Philadelphia, the meeting will focus on farmworker programs and law enforcement activities in the states of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and West Virginia.

Angell said topics will include efforts to clarify regulatory requirements, protection of workers in the migrant stream and rights and responsibilities of growers, crew leaders and workers.

Three agencies of the Labor Department administer laws and programs related to farmworkers: the Employment Standards Administration, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the Employment and Training Administration. Representatives of all three agencies will be on hand at the meeting to discuss their programs and answer questions.

"We hope that this meeting will help us to determine ways in which the department can be more responsive to the needs of farmworkers, growers and farm labor contractors," Angell said.

Pre-registration for the meeting, which is free and open to the public, is not required. Those needing further information about the session may contact the department's regional farm labor monitor, John Dower, at P.O. Box 8796, Philadelphia, Pa. 19101, phone 215/596-6393.

Lancaster-bred Holstein tops eastern show

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO

KUTZTOWN — Despite a wet and blustery beginning, Monday evening, which uprooted a cattle tent, the Eastern Pennsylvania Championship Holstein Show ended with a Lancaster County-bred Holstein as grand champion.

Fresh off her Grand Champion win, last month, at the Lancaster County Holstein Show, Vern Lee Tidy Win brought home another rosette for owner and breeder Russel L. Kline of Denver.

The 4-year-old Holstein, a Very Good 88, bested a field of nearly 230 entries before getting the winning nod from show judge Neil Bowen of Wellsboro.

"She's a sharp dairy kind of animal," Bowen announced. "She moves well and has a good sound udder. She catches your eye."

Bowen admitted the 4-year-old class, which produced the grand and reserve champion, was a close race, indeed.

Kline's champ, a homebred black and white, is sired by Cayoga-Inlet Kennedy Win and out of Lady Y-Run Tidy Glory who comes from a line of high butterfat testers, Kline noted. With a 4.6 test already behind her, the champ is projected at 23,000 pounds of milk and nearly 1,000 pounds of fat.

This year, however, will be Kline's last to collect ribbons with the champ. The fancy, show cow, who is bred but not confirmed to Faclamar Bootmaker, will be among the lot up for sale during senior calf is sired by Shardale Arlinda Chief Jemini and out of Ro-Ru Elevation Augusta.

Rain and high winds pelted this canvas cattle tent until it collapsed on dozens of animals and exhibitors, during the opening moments of the show. Later, there was lots of help to try and erect the tent.

the All-American Sale in September at Harrisburg.

But the Denver dairyman still has a few 'reserves,' for future shows.

Vern-Lee Mars Eileen, Kline's senior heifer entry, took Reserve Junior Champion honors. Sired by Lime-Hollow Elevation Mars, she is out of Vern-Lee First Edition.

Vern-Lee S-W-D Joshua, a junior bull calf, collected Reserve Champion Bull honors for Kline. The Valiant son is out of Vern-Lee Elevation Ella with records to 30,000 pounds of milk and 1,250 pounds of fat.

Before judge Bowen could tap the champion bull, the show was temporarily delayed by a sudden wind and rain storm which ran its path through the arena. The tornado-like winds whipped a canvas cattle tent from its supports, dropping the structure on dozens of animals and exhibitors.

Fortunately no people or animals were injured. Within seconds after the tent collapsed, several people disregarded their own safety and ran head-long into the torrent to move the cattle from the destructive wind and rain.

When the judging resumed about 30 minutes later, Bowen went with senior bull calf, Ro-Ru Jemini Aspin for grand champion.

Harvey W. Stoltzfus, right, is at the halter of Mor-View Ultimate Kay, the 1982 reserve grand champion. The 4-year-old Holstein is owned and bred by Harvey Z. Stoltzfus. Joining the reserve champ in the winner's circle is show judge Neil Bowen and Northampton County dairy princess Dawn Hower.

Vern-Lee Tidy Win, Very Good 88, was crowned the 1982 Eastern Pa. Holstein grand champion during Monday's championship show in Kutztown. Owned and bred by Russel Kline of Denver, Lancaster County, the 4-year-old champ, who also topped the county show, in July, will be one of several outstanding black and whites offered in All-American Sale, next month.

Bred and owned by Keith Buch of Fleetwood, the bull is sired by Shardale Arlinda Chief Jemini and out of Ro-Ru Elevation Augusta.

While Harvey Z. Stoltzfus of Morgantown was vacationing in Europe, his Holstein was exhibited by his brother-in-law Harvey W. Stoltzfus also of Morgantown. When the dust settled, Mor-View Ultimate Kay stood second in her 4-year-old class behind the grand champ and went on to claim Reserve Grand Champion honors.

Stoltzfus' son Myron explained it was the first time on the tanbark for the Quality Ultimate daughter, who scored Very Good 85 as a 2-year-old. The reserve champ is out of Mor-View Astronaut Kathy.

Ferkasie 4-H'er Darlene M. Buckman scored her first open win with her senior yearling heifer LoWoe Kit Builder Jerri. Named junior champion, the yearling is currently bred to LoWoe Ultimate Mason, a Quality Ultimate son. She is out of a Very Good 88-point cow, also sired by a homebred bull.

The Donald Hostetter family of Maplebound Farm pulled a repeat performance of last year's show and collected both the Premier Breeder and Exhibitor banners. The Farkesburg breeder earned several ribbons and ran away with the dry cow classes by taking a blue in the 5-years and under class and the first three placings in the dry cow, over 6-years class.

State ag committee plans busy month

HARRISBURG — August has proven to be a busy month for the state House Agriculture Committee.

The panel has toured a number of Pennsylvania wineries and is scheduled to visit Ag Progress Days at Penn State University. There is also a hearing slated on the controversial "puppy mill" legislation.

"We have taken advantage of the current break in floor sessions to learn more about the problems and concerns of Pennsylvania's agriculture industry," said committee Chairman Joseph V. Grieco.

Earlier this month the committee toured the grape-growing area of northwestern Pennsylvania. The commonwealth ranks fourth in the nation in the production of grapes. The panel toured four wineries and the Welch's grape processing plant in the Erie County borough of Northeast.

"Much of the state's crop is sold to Welch's," Grieco said. "So, while Pennsylvania ranks fourth in grape growing, it's 15th in the production of wine."

"The committee members who made the trip were quite appreciative of the opportunity to hear the concerns of the grape growers and vintners," he said. Grieco noted that the trip was arranged by Rep. Harry Bowser, R-Erie and Warren.

"Rep. Bowser is well-aware of the tremendous growth potential of the grape industry in the commonwealth," Grieco said. "It could be a valuable source of jobs in the next few years."

An Agriculture Committee hearing on a proposal to change the state dog law and to end inhumane puppy mills will be held in the Capitol on Tuesday, Aug. 17 at 10 a.m.

Grieco said he is conducting the hearing at the request of Bucks County Rep. James C. Greenwood, the prime sponsor of the legislation. The major section of Greenwood's bill would require anyone who boards more than 25 dogs to obtain a license for a kennel.

"Of course, not all dog breeders are out only to make a fast buck and subject animals to cruel and unhealthy conditions," Grieco said. "However, since kennels are not licensed in Pennsylvania it's difficult to monitor conditions at breeding operations."

"The kennels would be licensed under Rep. Greenwood's bill and dog enforcement officers would be able to inspect facilities to insure that the dogs being raised have adequate food, water, shelter and veterinary care." The legislation would also regulate dog detention facilities.

Those scheduled to testify include Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell and Donald Moul, director of the Bureau of Dog Law Enforcement.

A visit to the Ag Progress Days at Penn State University will cap the summer activity for the committee.

"Along with the State Farm Show in January, this event ranks as one of the most important dates on each year's agriculture calendar," Grieco said. The panel will hear from Dr. John Oswald, the president of the university.

Research shows you can get 25% more profit per acre by rolling and feeding earcorn, corn-cob mix.

THE AUTOMATIC EARCORN BLOWER MILL handles wet, frozen earcorn, even roasting ears. New integral blower discharge has a powerful 54-inch blower powered direct from mill drive shaft, blows processed feed directly into upright silo. High moisture facilities... up to 550 bu. per hour. Available with swivel spout for use with wagons, pit or bunker silo, etc

Unique crusher rolls shell the corn, crush the cob ahead of the rolls. No screens to plug, change, or slow down capacity. This exclusive feature permits operation with half the horsepower of competitive machines. Extra heavy-duty construction with 1 1/2-inch fatigue-proof, ground and polished drive shaft and 20-spline PTO drive with shear pin protection. Tapered auger base keeps mill clean — reduces build up of high-moisture grain or silage

The Vicon KM-240 cuts and conditions the tallest, tangled, wettest, heaviest, hay. This new mower-conditioner eliminates a pick-up reel, so you can put up more hay - FASTER. With a working width of 7'10", it can mow twice as much area in a day as most competitive models. Most competitors use a pick-up reel, which limits ground speed, adds maintenance problems and allows leaf loss.

The Vicon six-disc cutter bar feeds your crop directly, stem first, into rubber rollers that condition green hay or wet grass. It dries faster and bales easier, saving time and labor.

The KM-240 has no chains, no belts, no sickle bar. If you need only a mower, look at the Vicon CM-165 (4 discs-5 1/2' working width) or the CM-240 6 discs-7'10" working width). Both make clean cuts in heavy grass or tangled crops.

GEHL

The #1 Choice of our Nation's Farmers

Why? They have a 21" Mill with 66" reversible hammers which gives you more cutting action, not as much pounding which makes dust. Due to this fact you can use one size coarser screen than any competitive brand, that should tell you something. Another big plus is the self contained total hydraulics in loading and unloading augers which means no sprockets to trouble you.

NEW HOLLAND

TRUCKLOAD SALE — KNIGHT SPREADERS
You'll Never Regret Moving Up To Quality

Early Order Now For Fall Delivery & Receive Extra Discount (All Models)

350 Souper Solid
The Versatile Knight Spreader

If you handle sloppy manure, you can fully appreciate the Knight 350 Souper Solid.

The 350 Souper Solid has specially flared top steel rails to help prevent spillage during transport...flexible seals around the hydraulic endgate and apron return to retard leakage...and an ingenious system that tilts the box to an angle for fast unloading and fast clean out of sloppy material. The hydraulic endgate (raised to as little as 3 inches) can be used to meter the flow of sloppy material while the lower spinner beater efficiently spreads the sloppy manure...precisely where you want it.

The same design features that go into our other spreaders make the 350 Souper Solid Spreader the perfect spreader for handling solids too.

If you buy only one manure spreader, make it the Knight 350 Souper Solid. The best for both.

RUGGED • EFFICIENT • DEPENDABLE

Designed, built and serviced by people with many years of hands-on farm experience, Knight Spreaders are made to solve your spreading problems...not aggravate them..

Features like our rugged worm gear drive for positive, trouble-free operation... copper bearing hot rolled steel box for corrosion resistance...auger beaters with alloy steel "ripper" teeth to handle the tough stuff and optional hydro-fluid end-gate for "clean" spreading of sloppy manure... are just a few of the reasons why Knight Spreaders are the choice of successful dairymen and feeders. And for those operations requiring a self-propelled unit, large capacity Knight Spreaders can also be truck mounted.

This Model 410 Large Capacity Spreader is available in the Souper Solid Series

*More than 1600 owners of Axial-Flow combines compared the productivity of their Axial-Flow combines with their prior combines. These facts are from the more than 1000 corn/bean farmers reporting.

Increased Productivity Does Not Always Have To Carry A Higher Price Tag. IH Combines Are About The Same Price As Comparable Conventional Combines.

Outstanding Features

Thick walled for extra strength. No spreader on the market has thicker walls 30 to 70% thicker steel than competitive spreaders.

Adjustable relief valve maintains uniform pressure. Prevents over pressurization of tank.

Primary Shut-Off valve, plus a secondary shut off, provide more than adequate protection against liquids entering the pump.

Big 512 cubic inch displacement pressure-vacuum pump is standard equipment. Conservation rated at 135 C.F.M. of air at 85 to 90 percent vacuum for filling and will maintain 10 to 15 lbs of pressure for unloading or agitation in the pit.

Open door models permit access for cleaning and easy maintenance.

Walking beam suspension. Stand on 2,600, 3,150, 3,600 and 4,600 gallon models. (Optional on 1,500 & 2,100 gallon models). Front & rear wheels on each beam follow contour of the ground, provides a smooth level ride.

Massive frames resist the wrenching, twisting jolting shocks of hard field usage year after year.

WHO'S THE WU? HONDA? YES

We realize that Ferarri, Ford & Frank Perdue did not become household words overnight. The WU comes to us with all the fine construction, mechanical practicality, and efficient maintenance record we've come to expect from the orient. It even comes with the time prove HONDA G300 engine. For 8 years its been proving itself on the other side of the Pacific; now it's time the U.S. gets in on the WU experience.

To find out more about this versatile workhorse capable of carrying up to 1 ton payload an-8 hour day-on 2 gallons of gas. Write or Call:

LAIDIG 43 HIGH-MOISTURE GRAIN UNLOADER

The Laidig 43 series bottom-unloader POW-R-SWEEP auger powers its way through material every time you feed! It's the "full time" unloader

- Doesn't depend on gravity flow to deliver grain
- With a service tunnel 90% of all components are within easy access for maintenance
- Simple, powerful drive train
- Selection of unloading speeds
- Positive overload protection

We recommend Laidig 43 and 143 high-moisture grain unloaders for our oxygen-limited storage units. For replacement of inefficient gravity feed unloaders in metal structures, the new Laidig 43R can give you "full time" unloading in less than a day

LAIDIG 43R

NOW YOU CAN UNLOAD WITH THE BEST Shelled Or Ground Ear Corn

Storing high moisture grain can cause problems unless you have the right unloader. If you're bothered by high maintenance costs, poor feed delivery or a "free flow" system that fails, then you should consider the new Laidig 43R grain unloader.

It's designed for use in existing, oxygen-controlled storage units. And it can be installed in a single day WITHOUT ALTERATIONS TO YOUR STRUCTURE!

The Laidig 43R Power Sweep Auger replaces those Gravity Feed Sweep Augers. It's a heavy-duty machine engineered for day-in, day-out operation...the same high quality and peak performance that operators expect from a leader...from Laidig!

Acorn's system retains more fertilizer value than liquid systems and significantly reduces odors... and you don't have to buy something you don't really need. Acorn's system eliminates your need for a large tractor, a new, expensive liquid agitator pump, and a liquid spreader. With Power For Bedding.

The Monster® Manure Pump.

The Monster's massive piston moves bedded manure up to 250 feet with ease, because the solid piston pushes the manure - the manure does not have to pass through the piston. The powerful Monster efficiently handles manure with long cut straw. Yet, all this power requires only a 10-horsepower motor, providing you with lower energy costs. The Monster will live a long life - all parts subject to wear can be easily replaced. Call today for details.

FARMERS: HOW IS YOUR HAY?

Is your hay, haylage or silage top quality? Will it stay top quality in storage?

Good management practices along with Animal Aroma-Pep can help provide forage that is:

- Sweet smelling and palatable • Has less spoilage • Heats less • Has less seepage & handles easier
- Better looking and better tasting forage that cattle like to eat.

Animal Aroma-Pep Conditioner and Feed Flavoring is for use on hay, haylage, silage or high moisture corn. Aroma-Pep can also be added to grain feeds to increase palatability and aroma of the feeds.

We are looking for an individual who is currently working in an agricultural business with a "strong" ag background.

Our product is a 'big ticket' item that lessens production costs of a farmer. Income potential is $35,000 plus. Territory would be Berks, Lancaster and Chester County areas. Inquiries are treated confidentially.

Agway reports $21 million payout

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Agway Inc., a farm supply and food marketing cooperative serving 12 northeastern states, reports a record payment of $21 million to Agway members and other investors as dividends, interest and "extra" payment on Agway securities during the recently completed fiscal year ending June 30, 1982.

The annualized interest rate amounted to 12.62% for the agway money market certificates which pay a minimum interest rate of 10% and 10½%.

"The record payout of dividends and interest on highly competitive investment dollars placed money in the pockets of farmers while helping finance their cooperative," said William A. Hiller, president and chief executive officer of Agway Inc.

Deutz adds name, products

ATLANTA, Ga. — Deutz, the diesel tractor specialist, has added both to its marketing name and its line of agricultural equipment products.

The new name, which will appear on the front of the tractor and on other equipment, will be Deutz-Fahr, unifying the corporate identification. The tractors traditionally had been sold under the Deutz tag and hay tools were sold under the Fahr brand.

As distribution throughout North America is steadily expanded, product lines also will be increased, according to Frank J. Kaplan, vice president of marketing for the Agricultural Division of Deutz Corporation, Atlanta.

Deutz presently has more than 380 dealers throughout North America.

Among new product introductions by Deutz-Fahr are a tractor rated at 73 pto hp. and a hay tedder.

The new tractor addition expands the firm's line to nine basic models ranging from 43 to 140 pto hp. All are available with two-wheel or four-wheel (mechanically powered front wheels) drive.

The new model, the D7807, is powered by a four-cylinder, 249-cu. in. engine from the Deutz direct air-cooled 913 diesel engine series. It features high fuel efficiency and a 24-gallon tank.

It also features a synchromesh, 12F-4R transmission with a speed range of 1.3 to 18.6 mph and a wide choice of gears in the working range.

The new hay tedder is designated the KH 300 AS — a pull-type, two-star machine with a working width of nine feet, 10 inches. It performs the same work as the larger KH 500 model.

The KH 300 is useful in many different applications, from tedding and conditioning tough grasses to gently fluffing delicate, high protein alfalfas.

The six intermeshing arms on each star of the KH 300 perform a rubbing, bending action on grass stems and leaves.

The new machine also has an optional slow-down kit which permits very gentle, in-place fluffing of rain-wet hay windrows.

This technique, which is rapidly gaining wide acceptance in the North American market, reduces leaf loss in alfalfa to an absolute minimum.

The KH 300 will handle a single 12, 14 or 16-foot windrow.

ABS begins bull barn replacement

DEFOREST, WI — A ceremony, which was slightly dampened by a sprinkle of rain, was watched by more than 100 employees as the first spadefuls of earth were dug to begin construction on a new barn at American Breeders Service, DeForest, Wisconsin.

The new facility, estimated at $1.1 million and capable of housing 104 bulls, will replace the beef bull barn lost in the fire last December 8, which killed 26 beef bulls and three Brown Swiss.

Robert E. Walton, President of ABS, presided over the ground breaking. He was joined on the platform by top officials of W. R. Grace & Co. parent firm of ABS, including J. Peter Grace, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Carl N. Graf, President of W. R. Grace, and Robert A. Clabault, Executive Vice President and head of the General Industrial Products Group.

The new barn, scheduled for completion in December, will be a pre-engineered metal building by Varco-Pruden, manufactured in Evansville, Wisconsin. It will stand beside two existing barns at the firm's major facility at DeForest and measure 300 feet long by 80 feet wide with three silos for feed and bedding.

Three new employees will likely be added to the staff when the building is opened. Jerry Wille, of Curry-Wille and Associates, Ames, Iowa, is architect and consulting engineer. Mid-States Building Systems, Columbus, Wisconsin, is the general contractor.

Another ABS news, Walton has announced that he has withdrawn his resignation from ABS and Grace and will continue as head of ABS.

In an announcement made several weeks ago, Walton attributed his resignation to "policy differences" with the corporate management. When withdrawing his resignation, Walton said that "the differences that led to my original decision to leave have been cleared up and I am very pleased to be staying with ABS and Grace. After all, this organization has been the principal activity of my professional life."

CCC rate rises to 14%

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Commodity and farm storage loans disbursed in August by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation will carry a 14 percent interest rate, according to CCC Executive Vice President Everett Rank.

The new rate, up from 13.5 percent, reflects the interest rate charged CCC by the U.S. Treasury in August, Rank said.

Paraquat gets multi-use approval

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. — Ortho Paraquat CL has received 24(C) Special Local Need registration in five eastern states for use several times throughout the growing season to control weeds between alfalfa cuttings. The registrations include Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Delaware.

Ortho Paraquat CL is the only herbicide labeled for between-cutting applications on alfalfa. University research and grower results have shown the product to be effective in controlling annual grasses and broadleaves and to suppress perennial plants that emerge in the summer. The new multiple application registration now gives growers greater flexibility in the use of this weed control tool, according to Chevron Chemical Company.

The contact herbicide may be applied at the rate of one pint per acre in 20 to 60 gallons of water by ground equipment as a broadcast application. It should be applied only to established alfalfa stands that are at least one year old.

Applications should be made immediately after alfalfa has been removed for silage or hay. Fields should not be treated more than five days after cutting.

Growers should note that alfalfa foliage present at the time of application will be burned, and that weeds germinating after the

PMA cites Sauder

PHILADELPHIA — Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association Insurance Company has presented Safe Driver Awards to R.W. Sauder, Inc., Lititz, in recognition of the poultry and egg processing firm's outstanding highway safety record.

Paraquat application will not be controlled.

Paraquat may be applied from one to three times during the cutting season. Chevron also recommends that 16 fluid ounces of Ortho X-77 Spreader be added to 100 gallons of spray mix.

The awards presentation took place during a Driver Award Banquet at the Leola Family Restaurant. Paul Sauder, vice president, and Craig Sylves, account executive for PMA, presented the awards to six drivers. Each driver averaged 50,000 miles annually in eastern Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware and Virginia.

Drivers honored were Reuben Horning, 11 years; Louis Sauder, 3 years; and Nelson Gingrich, Marvin Hartman, Jr., Ken Fisher and Luther Staats, all 2 years.

With the large selection of products available to you today, deciding which way to turn brings important questions to be answered...

- WHAT AM I GOING TO USE ON MY SILAGE THIS YEAR?

B A Yeast Preparation?
C A Urea Product?
D A Molasses Based Product?
E A Cultured Additive?
- WHAT WILL TOTAL COST OF THE PREPARATION BE?

- HOW WILL I APPLY THE PRODUCT I CHOOSE?
A Easy Application!
B Requires Special Applicator!
C Must Be Applied By Hand!

Now .Let us give you answers to the above questions in relationship to our product . ALFA-ZYME!

The Answers
!!

- ALFA ZYME is a fermented enzyme product injected onto a fine grade alfalfa (a top grade carrier of enzymes). We have the ORIGINAL ENZYMES PRODUCT!
- The COST of ALFA-ZYME Vs. return for your dollar is fantastic. While other products use minimal lbs. per ton ALFA ZYME requires 50 Lbs. for every 3 tons of silage or high moisture corn. A 120 ton silo takes 40 bags or 1 tone of ALFA-ZYME
- We realize we might not have the easiest product to apply, but after application we have that "SOME THING SPECIAL" that makes better silage and corn! (No we don't have an "easy applicator" but then again if your results are not satisfactory with "easy applied" products all you end up with is a useless "easy applicator!"

We hope the above information has captured your attention. Now we have a few questions of our own...

- Do you realize the product you choose will determine the outcome of your silage up to the next filling season? You can change your feeding program often, but the product you apply to your silage or corn must work the coming winter, spring and summer months!
- Have you already purchased a product because of an early discount or "special deal"? If so, try this test...fill 1/2 your silo with the other product and then add ALFA-ZYME to the remainder. Make 1982 the year you make the test!

IN SUMMARY...

Making BETTER SILAGE and HIGHER MOISTURE CORN is our main business. And, ALFA-ZYME has been proven on farms like yours in PA, MD, and VA.

BEAT THE SUMMER HEAT... SPRINKLER COOLING SYSTEM (Not Fogger) FOR HOGS

THE PROBLEM

When the temperature goes up, one of the first ways your body reacts is by breaking out in perspiration. That's nature's way of cooling off.

It's different with hogs. High temperatures cause them a great deal of stress because they can't sweat. When under this stress due to heat, hogs will lose their appetite, weight gains drop, there is poor feed conversion, conception rate is reduced and pens become a mess. All of this adds up to lost profits.

THE SOLUTION!

When the temperature is above 72° F even ventilation can't cure the stress that results. But a sprinkler cooling system can help your hogs where nature fell short, giving them a chance to cool off. It sprays them with coarse water droplets to reduce their body temperature. The idea is simple, but extremely effective.

THE SYSTEM:

The sprinkle cycle is turned on automatically whenever the barn temperature rises above a preset level 72° F. Throughout this "on" period the control functions to permit sprinkling to occur for a preset time period each hour. (2 minutes/hour is recommended for best results.) When the barn temperature drops below 72° F the cycle is automatically interrupted.

Control Panel

Nozzle

The nozzles are clamped to a plastic pipe strung over the gutter of slatted area at the rear of the pen. Each nozzle covers a 5-6 foot diameter area which usually means one nozzle per pen. The nozzle assures a coarse droplet spray pattern which is important for maximum cooling. A fine mist of fog is not desirable in geographical areas of generally high summer relative humidity.

IH reports incentive plan; announces additional tractors

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. — International Harvester has announced a variety of incentives available to help farmers purchase new equipment through October 31, 1982. Options available to farmers on tractors and combines, for example, include a waiver of finance charges, cash rebates directly from IH, and special low rate financing.

In a meeting with its agricultural equipment dealers from throughout the Va., W.V., Pa., Md., N.J. area, IH also announced the availability of three new farm tractors rated at 80, 112 and 170 FTO horsepower.

"IH is moving forward with new products while offering the farmer a choice of purchase options that best match his individual needs," said R. F. Goodwin District Manager for the area.

From now through October 31, 1982, Goodwin explained, farmers purchasing a new IH two-wheel drive tractor up to 187 FTO horsepower or a four-wheel drive tractor up to 170 FTO horsepower have a choice of three options: special low rate financing of 12.9% for three years or 14.9% for up to five years; or a waiver of finance until Jan. 1, 1983 with a cash rebate on most models ranging from $550 to $2,600; or larger cash rebates ranging from $700 to $4,000 for cash settlement. The special low rate financing and waiver of finance apply for all new tractor purchases financed through the International Harvester Credit Corporation. Goodwin added that the choice of the same low rate financing terms, or a waiver of finance until Jan. 1, 1983 with no rebate, or a rebate for cash settlements, is available on new IH combines purchased from now through October 31, 1982. Other incentives are available for used tractors and combines and for certain implements, Goodwin said.

Of the three new tractors announced at the meeting today, two are additions to the IH 30 Series introduced last September. Included are the 80 FTO horsepower 3088 with a smooth-shifting 16F/8R speed transmission and the 3488 Hydro at 112 FTO horsepower with hydrostatic transmission offering an infinite selection of speeds without having to shift gears.

The other new tractor is the 170 FTO horsepower 6788, largest in IH's line of 2+2 design combines the traction of four-wheel drive with the row-crop versatility of two-wheel drive designs.

He also noted that more than 1,100 IH dealers in the U.S. and Canada are holding Productivity Clinics this summer to advise owners of IH's Axial-Flow combines how to properly maintain and adjust their combines for maximum productivity. Also, from August through October, more than 1,300 IH dealers will host Red Power Showdown Days to highlight the complete line of IH tractors as well as combines and other implements.

Tobacco harvest

This working prototype of a tobacco harvester is being developed by agricultural engineers and agronomists at the University of Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station and tobacco research farm near Upper Marlboro. Patterned after the "French Harvesting System," the equipment virtually eliminates the need for hand cutting, spearing and stacking, with one machine operator replacing five or six hand laborers.

Boar meeting, auction on Aug. 23

WEST WILLOW, Pa. — Hog producers interested in improving the productivity of their operations and bidding for a high-grade Kleen Leen boar are invited to a brief meeting and boar auction on Monday, Aug. 23rd at the Lampeter Fairgrounds, sponsored by West Willow Farmers Association and the Ralston Purina Company.

According to Curt Walter, swine specialist for West Willow, the meeting will feature presentations on selecting proper breeding stock. "We want to show area producers that breeding programs do make a difference in their overall profits — often $25-$50 difference per litter," Walter reveals. "Up until now, too many producers relied upon guesswork or instinct when selecting their boars — probably because there was no better way to do it."

"But the Genetic Potential Rating (GPR) system formulated by Kleen Leen has eliminated the guesswork, and now allows producers to know what kind of boar they're buying before making a costly investment," the swine specialist continues. "We strongly believe in the system, and the Monday evening meeting offers area producers an opportunity to judge the system for themselves."

Tom Painter, Division Swine Specialist for Kleen Leen will be on hand to explain the GRP system. Gene Hubbard, District Manager for Purina, will also reveal how the right breeding program can give the producer the genetic edge he needs in today's market.

Following the presentations, which are slated to begin at 7 p.m., West Willow will auction off its Kleen Leen Boar at 8:15 p.m. Producers can get a first-hand view of the boar from 6:30-7 p.m.

The meeting and boar auction are open to all area pork producers. For further information, contact Curt Walter at 464-3386 or visit the store on Sprecher Road.

Insecticide available in Pa.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Anchor Laboratories announces the availability of new Permethrin II insecticide in Arkansas, Colorado, Louisiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah and Wyoming for direct application to animals.

Permethrin II is a concentrated, safe, environmentally acceptable insecticide intended for the control of horseflies, horn flies, face flies, stable flies, houseflies, fleas, lice, mites (including northern fowl mite) and ticks on large and small animals.

Permethrin II is formulated from the chemical permethrin. Although it is safe to animals, permethrin is one of the most effective compounds used to control insects of any insecticidal class. State registrations for Permethrin II were granted based on local needs for a safe but effective livestock and pet spray.

Permethrin II offers both quick knockdown and long residual qualities. Fewer spray applications to animals are required during the insect season with Permethrin II than with other common insecticides.

Oats eligible for grain reserve

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The 1982 and 1983 crops of oats now are eligible for immediate entry into the farmer-owned grain reserve because oat prices have fallen below a previously established level.

Reserve regulations provide that a commodity may be placed in the reserve when the market price is below its reserve trigger release level. That level for oats is $1.65 per bushel.

Farmers with 1981 crop oats under Commodity Credit Corporation loan and who place this grain in the reserve are eligible for a 7-cents-per-bushel higher loan rate and an advance 20-cents-per-bushel storage payment.

Producers of 1982 crop oats who place their grain in the reserve are eligible for a 18-cents-per-bushel higher loan as well as the 20-cents storage payment, Rank said.

The CCC national average loan rate for 1981-crop oats is $1.24 per bushel. When this commodity is placed in the reserve, the loan rate is $1.31 per bushel. The 1982 loan rate is $1.31 per bushel and the reserve loan rate is $1.49 per bushel.

The interest rate on CCC loans is the rate applicable to all loans issued by the CCC during the month of disbursement.

Heat pump cuts utility bills

LANCASTER — Dairy Equipment Company, a division of DEC International Inc., Wisconsin, introduces the Thermo-Stor Heat Pump Water Heater. The Thermo-Stor heat pump is the water heater to cope with ever rising utility bills.

The heat pump uses a small refrigeration compressor to extract heat from the air around it. Thermo-Stor transfers this heat to the water in its storage tank efficiently and economically.

This method of heating water can more than triple the efficiency of the electricity used, compared with conventional electric water heating. In actual tests, Thermo-Stor saved as much as 75% of the cost of energy, used by conventional water heaters. And cooled, dehumidified air is provided, too.

Dairy Equipment Company also manufactures the Bou-Matic milking system, the Dari-Kool cooling system and the Thermo-Stor heat recovery system.

Allied buys Nitragin

MORRISTOWN, N.J. — Acquisition of The Nitragin Company, Inc., has been announced by Allied Chemical, an operating company of Allied Corporation.

Nitragin is the leading manufacturer and marketer of nitrogen-fixing bacteria inoculants for legume crops.

"This acquisition provides us with a commercial vehicle for our genetically-engineered rhizobia bacteria products of the future. It is our first step in introducing new high technology products into our agricultural marketing program," explained Robert M. Schweikher, Allied Executive Vice President.

Schweikher said Allied has been conducting genetic engineering research since 1980, and is making good progress. "The Nitragin Company now brings us bacteria production technology that will assist us in marketing new, improved strains for soybeans plus an in-place distribution capability to farm supply outlets which is a new dimension for Allied," Schweikher stated.

He said Nitragin will operate as a free-standing company, managed by existing employees, under the leadership of President John I. Matchette. James F. Matchette, former President, who has been with Nitragin for 30 years, and Jeffrey G. Matchette, are both retained as consultants.

Lone Medfly causes increased USDA trapping

WASHINGTON, D. C. — California and U. S. Department of Agriculture officials have increased trapping and fruit cuttings in the western Los Angeles, Calif., area after trapping a single Mediterranean fruit fly July 21 in a peach tree in a residential area.

"We feel this find is probably a new introduction, rather than part of any previous infestation," said Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, C. W. McMillan. The fly was in an area of repeated intensive trapping, and the last Medfly found in the entire Los Angeles area was last Oct. 28, at West Covina, McMillan said.

"We are doing an intensive appraisal and evaluation in the area," McMillan said, "and based on this study we will determine if quarantine regulations and eradication treatments, including aerial spraying, are needed. The fly was in an area where there was no commercial fruit."

Traps will be increased to 50 per square mile around the find, which is eight miles north of Los Angeles Airport between Beverly Hills and Los Angeles, 26 miles from West Covina. Fruit will be cut so officials can examine it for any Medfly larvae.

"We have notified Japanese agricultural officials of the find and they are taking a wait and see attitude," McMillan said.

Medfly officials found a Medfly last month in an urban area south of Stockton, Calif., in the San Joaquin Valley. Emergency regulations on movement of host fruit, intensive aerial insecticide treatments and increased trapings were ordered then, McMillan said, because of commercial fruit production in the area and the relative proximity to infestations in the Santa Clara Valley.

"The Los Angeles area has had a history of fruit fly introductions over the past several years," McMillan said, "and therefore it isn't surprising to find one in this area."

Pitfalls of Farmer Hedging

Commodity hedging is not something to be entered into lightly, without extensive study and preparation. Farmers who make the decision to hedge without considering the risks, along with the benefits, have already made their first mistake.

As a guide for inexperienced hedgers, here are some major pitfalls into which farmers have fallen in the past:

Bypassing the basis

The first step in using futures markets effectively is to study your local basis — the difference between the futures market price for a selected month and your local spot market price.

Without knowing your local basis and how it typically behaves, you have no way of knowing whether the price offer by the futures market is attractive.

Slipping into speculation

Countless stories tell of farmers who "lost big money" in hedging programs. All too often, it turns out that the farmer who lost money had gone beyond a safe hedge into a risky speculation.

Hedging is a temporary substitute for a cash transaction planned later for the physical commodity — a grain farmer selling the crop, a feedlot operator buying feed or feeder cattle, or a hog producer selling hogs.

If a particular transaction is not clearly a hedge, then it should be recognized as speculation.

When you hedge, the odds are in your favor if you understand the futures market, have a good fix on your production costs, and lock in prices that will provide satisfactory returns. The odds shift dramatically when you start speculating.

Becoming a "know-it-all"

There's an old axiom among the floor traders at every futures exchange: "The trader who is certain where the market is going has no business here, and won't be here long."

Overconfidence — whether based on some advisory service's "guaranteed formula," your own extensive research, or even the success of a well-planned hedging program — can encourage risk-taking and court disaster. No one knows for certain where the markets are going, or when.

Floor traders make money and then lose it. The speculator who writes a book on how to make a million dollars in commodities may be broke before the book is published.

Even one of the major grain companies lost more than $80 million in one 3-month period a few years ago (primarily in cash market commitments) because it misjudged the soybean market.

Futures prices at any given time reflect all that is known and all that is expected on the value of commodities being traded. This is why a bearish crop report is often followed by a price increase — because the traders had expected an even more bearish report than they got.

In other words, you should always assume that any information that comes your way has already been analyzed and acted upon by other traders who devote 100 percent of their time to futures markets.

But while "professional" traders may have faster access to a more complete picture of the overall supply and demand situation, you probably know the production situation in your own area more intimately than anyone outside that area. So your comparative advantage is in hedging your own risks, judged in light of your own costs.

MMI looks at end-product pricing

STRONGSVILLE, OHIO — The voting delegates of Milk Marketing, Inc. passed a resolution at their recently held mid-year delegate meeting that would begin the component pricing system for their members' milk September 1, 1983.

The program, originally presented at the December 1981 delegate meeting, was scheduled to begin January 1, 1983. The newly established September deadline will give MMI members an opportunity to further evaluate the program.

With the start of the protein pricing program, MMI will pay its producer/members at a higher rate for milk containing high levels of protein.

MMI Board Member from District 20 Gary Michael, Sidney, Ohio told the 250 delegate meeting at the Fawcett Center in Columbus, Ohio that the implementation of this program could enhance the taste and nutritional image of fluid milk and therefore, improve future Class I sales.

The protein pricing program could also assist MMI in even more effectively marketing members milk by putting MMI in a better competitive position.

Other reports from MMI officers painted a successful financial year for the 9,400 member dairy cooperative. President Norman Alger, Mantau, Ohio stated that long term debt of the co-op has been reduced, while maintaining the working capital requirements established by MMI's financial institutions. Alger also said member equity for the co-op has increased more than $3 million during the past year.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Summer heifer management
Flies, gnats, and other biting insects plus hot sticky weather sure "play hob" with animals and people who can't get inside.

For the past month our heifers have been coming down from the hill between 6:30 and 7:30 each morning. We can almost pin point the time the gnats start swarming by their migration to the shade of the free stall barn. They go back out again about dusk. We try to make sure they have plenty of hay available in the barn.

I feel sorry for those poor animals who have to be out in the type of weather and insect laden air we're having this summer. How can they grow properly if most of their daylight hours are spent milling around fighting the biting "bugs".

Control insects

Controlling insects may be harder this year than in most years. A wet June must have been ideal for them. In years past, we've sprayed, treated, and dusted our heifers which usually has produced results. This year all this treatment has been of limited value.

That doesn't mean to quit, however. Some suggestions: eliminate lush green weeds around buildings; keep stored manure in one place where it can crust; treat buildings or shelters where animals congregate; treat the animal (ask your county agent for approved material).

Feed

Feed some good forage to supplement pasture. You may also want to feed some grain if your forage is not top quality. Feed minerals and vitamins as part of a grain mix or separately.

If you feed silage, haylage, or grain, do not allow any of this material to stay in the feed bunk more than 24 hours. In the hot humid weather we've had recently, perhaps even 24 hours is too long.

Clean out leftover feed and discard it. If it stays in the feed bunks too long, it will become spoiled.

Spoiled feed is bad for 2 reasons. First it will spoil any fresh feed that it touches. Second it will reduce the palatability of all feed put into the bunk because of both taste and odor.

The worst mistake a farmer can make is to say that the animals will have to clean up all of the feed in the feeder before they get any more. That is very poor economics.

Heifers appreciate clean cool water for the same reason you do. Waterers or watering tubs should be cleaned periodically. Cleaning is especially important in hot weather because animals need more water and feed and other organic material that gets into the water spoils faster than in cold weather.

Always put yourself in the place of your animal. Would you relish stale crackers (stale hay, haylage, or silage)? Would you like to drink water from a glass filled with partly rotten grain, grass, or silage? Would you appreciate it if you were forced to stand out in the sun with gnats "buzzing" you all day?

Remember that well-grown heifers will probably make more profit for you than undersized ones. They are bigger so they can eat more. Since they already have good growth, more of their nutrients can go into producing milk. They can probably enter the milking string at an earlier age due to better size and a better developed reproductive system.

York-Adams Guernsey breeders meet

LITTLESTOWN — Guernsey breeders and their guests from a five county radius plus Maryland converged at the farm of Mervin and David Myers, Finey Lane Guernseys, Littlestown, last Tuesday for the York-Adams Guernsey Breeders' Association annual summer meeting.

The event, which traditionally was held as an evening chicken bar-b-que, was expanded this year to include judging contests and farm visits to Finey Lane and Green Manor Guernseys, which is owned and operated by John and Ginger Myers also of Littlestown.

Finey Lane Guernseys has had the highest fat-production herd for the breed in the state for the past two years and was high herd for milk in 1980. In 1981 they were third for milk and first for fat and protein in Pennsylvania with 56.6 cows averaging 13,947 pounds of milk and 694 pounds of fat. Their 1980 fat average of 705 pounds of butterfat made them the first Guernsey herd in the state to break the 700-pound fat barrier.

Mervin Myers explained that at Finey Lane they are "very butterfat conscience and choose their bulls accordingly." Myers stressed that with component pricing on the horizon high testing milk would be imperative for capitalizing on this marketing trend.

Following lunch, the group convened at the farm of John and Ginger Myers, Green Manor Guernseys. Prior to marriage, John had been in partnership with his father Mervin, and Ginger had been employed by the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeders' Association as a field representative.

A relatively young operation started in December 1980, Green Manor Stables had one cow that was of special interest to many of the guests — Sniders Frince Lily. This record-making daughter of Lyreme May Rose Frince has made three consecutive national class leading records and has won the Tarbell Trophy twice as the breed's highest fat producer.

Prizes donated by local agribusinesses and A.I. units provided the awards for those who bested their competitors in the judging contest. Serving as official judge was Lee Yost, Business Manager for the Pa. Guernsey Breeders' Association.

In the Guernsey judging contest, two perfect marks were scored in the Men's Division with Phil Laughman, York, and Mike John, Lancaster both scoring 100 points. Capturing the Ladies' Division with a score of 98 points was Ruth Benedict John, Lancaster. Shawn Lee Brown, Mercersburg, won the Youth Division.

were: Shawn Lee Brown, Youth Division; Phil Laughman and Mike John, Men's Division; and Ruth Benedict John, Ladies Division

Adams beef producers discuss industry at field day

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

MC KNIGHTSTOWN — In an effort to better understand all segments of their industry from producer to packer to consumer, the Adams County Beef Producers Association held a day-long field day designed to discuss mutual concerns.

The event, which attracted beef enthusiasts and agribusiness interests from five surrounding counties and also Maryland and West Virginia, was held last Saturday, at the farm of Paul John Shenk, of Penn State, stresses the importance of forage testing to participants in the Adams County Beef Producers Field Day.

Livestock judges study the market steers and breeding stock on the Paul Heffner farm at the Adams County Beef Field Day.

Heffner, McKnightstown.

Host for the event and moderator of a panel discussion during the morning session, Paul Heffner welcomed the group to his 600-acre operation, which includes 400 acres of pasture to accommodate the farm's more than 300 head of cattle. This number includes 130 brood cows and 70 head of fat heifers. Heffner noted that he attempts to increase his profits by increasing his efficiency through more rapid weight gains and through the use of all available technology and information sources.

During the panel discussion concerning the beef industry, profit potential surfaced as the theme weighing most heavily on the producer's mind. Members of the panel represented the cow-calf operator, the feedlot operator, the packer, the marketing reporter, and the consumer. As the discussion progressed, the need for increased product promotion, the positive role of the packer, and the need for producers to keep a sharper eye on production cost were stressed to increase profit levels.

Dave Sorosky, representing Moyer Packing Co., fielded several questions from the group concerning the breed and size of cattle that Moyer is seeking. Moyer informed the group that there aren't enough feeder cattle in Pennsylvania and would like to see a sizeable increase in production. He noted that the packer is using all the cattle it can get regardless of size or breed. But Moyer prefers 1100-1200-lb. steers since these cut out a steak size that is more appealing to the consumer. However, he stated, Moyer is presently paying a three-cent premium for heavy carcasses because there just are not enough heavy cattle around.

John Sherk, of Penn State's Agronomy Department, was on hand to explain the value of forage testing and to demonstrate the department's mobile infra-red forage analyzer. Sherk urged the group to use the available technology to obtain information readily on the nutritional value of forages and then integrate that knowledge into their management to help them make money.

Following a roast beef luncheon complete with the trimmings that was sponsored by Paul Heffner and Ray and Mary Grimes, the livestock judges in the crowd tried their skills on two classes of market steers and two classes of breeding heifers. Official judge for the day was Donald Sunday, York. Winning the adult division was David Seaman, State College, and Dennis Flickinger, Gettysburg, topped the youth division. In a contest to correctly guess the weight of Heffner's three-year-old Limousine bull, Ed Brown, Charlestown, W. Va. guessed the exact weight, 1910 pounds.

Mechanical might on display at the Buck

Standing waiting its turn on the track is "The Eagle" of Richard Zimmerman, of Mt. Joy. It is powered by a trio of 440 Dodge engines.

The AAA Invitational National tractor pulling competition at the Buck last weekend brought out a variety of mighty machines and daring drivers. This "beer can" on wheels, powered

This maze of power, pipes and air cleaners is found on the "Makin Bacon Special" of Bruce Hutcherson, hog farmer from Patriot, Ind. Power train features four 524 cu. in. supercharged Rodeck engines.

With a final puff of diesel smoke, the tractor of Robert Brown, of Hanover, powered by an 18-wheeler engine, grinds to a halt.

Rearing up on its "hind legs" is the Animal of Hale Woodward, of Marlborough N.H. Its horsepower is generated by an Allison aircraft engine.

Troy Fair finished biggest year

BY JANE BRESEE
Staff Correspondent

TROY — The 107th annual Troy Fair in Bradford County scheduled for the last week of July was bigger and better than ever this year according to fair officials.

Weather for the fair was perfect for the three days of dairy cattle judging. More youth entries than usual for Tuesday's show of 4H and FFA cattle were noted by Cooperative Extension Agent Orville Yoder who with the assistance of Jake Guffey, Extension Agent, moderated the shows. Approximately 500 cattle were run through the show ring in the three days.

Bradford County Dairy Princess Valerie Moon with her alternates Sheryl Avery and Alisa Smith, were on hand to pass out ribbons and trophies. The trophies and plaques were donated by several businesses, cattle breeders, and cattle clubs.

Judge for the colored breeds was Denny Wolf of Millville, while Tom Dum III of Landisburg placed the Holstein and Brown Swiss breeds.

Grand Champion Holstein for the Youth Show Day was Fack-herd Elevation Brassy bred by Richard and Marilyn Fackard of East Troy, and owned and shown by 11-year-old Terri Fackard. The Fackards carried off blue ribbons in many classes in the Holstein judging on Friday and ended up Premier Breeder and Exhibitor with Richard and Georgia Jenkins of Troy running a close second.

Grand Champion and Senior Champion Holstein ribbons were both taken by Windy-Mont Clyde Gigi owned and bred by George Page, Jr. of Columbia Cross Roads.

Reserve Grand Champion and Reserve Senior Champion awards went to Rolling-Valley Brett Ter-Twin bred by the Landis Bros. and owned by Melvin Feifer of Canton and Landis Bros. of Troy.

Holstein Junior Champion went to Fivebrooks Valiant Ginseng

Grand Champion and Junior

Champion of the Ayrshire breed show Thursday was Wyn-Ayr C.F. Nan, bred by David Andrus and shown by Vonda Andrus of Troy.

Reserve Grand Champion and Reserve Junior Champion Brown Swiss was Wyn-Ayr C.F. Fashion bred by Richard F. Winch and owned by Brent Andrus of Troy.

USDA requests comments on 1983 feed grain program

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has asked the public to comment by Aug. 26 on provisions of the 1983 feed grain program, the details of which must be announced by Nov. 15.

Block said he plans to announce the 1983 feed grain well in advance of the Nov. 15 statutory deadline.

Block said the U.S. Department of Agriculture would like to receive as many comments as possible so it will have a broad range of public opinion about the program. He said he will study the public's recommendations, as well as the most current data on U.S. and world crop conditions and crop supply and demand before he makes final decisions.

Specifically, USDA would like to receive comments on:

- loan and purchase prices, target prices and the national program acreage;
- whether to establish either an acreage reduction or set-aside program; and, if USDA establishes reductions for corn, oats, barley or sorghum, the levels of such reductions;
- provisions governing acreage devoted to conservation use;
- whether to establish a land diversion program and if such a program is established, a payment date for the diversion;
- offsetting and cross compliance requirements under acreage reduction program;
- methods for determining 1983

crop acreage bases;

— whether barley should be included for payment purposes; and — if malting barley is included in the 1983 program, whether it should be exempted from any acreage reduction program.

Block also asked for opinions on provisions for a farmer-owned grain reserve, commodity eligibility, premiums and discounts, the establishment of county loan rates and all other provisions necessary to carry out a loan and purchase program for feed grains.

Details of program options USDA is considering appeared in the July 27, Federal Register.

Howard C. Williams, director, analysis division, USDA-ASCS, room 3741-S, P. O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013. The comments will be available for public inspection in room 3741 of USDA's South Building during regular business hours.

Direct meat market fattens farm profits

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Fruits, vegetables, and flowers aren't the only home-grown products that farmers sell directly to consumers. Some farmers have turned livestock and poultry operations into thriving direct-marketing businesses.

In surveys covering 22-states, farmer-to-consumer livestock and livestock product sales represented only about 15 percent of all direct marketing receipts. However, this 15 percent added up to nearly $90 million in annual farm earnings, according to Hal Linstrom of USDA's Economic Research Service.

Included in the figure are direct sales of livestock and poultry meat, livestock byproducts, eggs, and live animals. Dairy product sales, which are reported separately, would raise the total another $44 million. Dollar volume in all categories is probably higher today because the surveys date from 1978 to 1980.

Within the livestock marketing group are some of the most specialized of direct sellers: farmers who raise, slaughter, process, and retail their animals. No one knows for sure how many operations fit this description nationwide, but interest in this type of marketing has been growing, Linstrom says.

To learn more about direct marketers of livestock and meat, the Economic Research Service and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station conducted a study of nine Texas farm operations that handle livestock from production through retail sale. For comparison, analysts also looked at eight nonfarm operations that buy livestock and custom slaughter the animals for retail and wholesale customers.

The recently completed study focused on beef and pork operations, although some of the findings might apply to other livestock products as well. Data cited apply to 1980.

Both the farm and the nonfarm firms were relatively small. The farmer-owned operations slaughtered an average of 47 cattle and 24 hogs a week, while the nonfarm firms average 42 cattle and 17 hogs.

All the operations provided custom slaughtering and processing services, including killing and skinning the animal, dividing the carcass into cuts, and wrapping, freezing, and smoking the meat according to the customer's preference. A few rented locker space to their customers for storage of frozen meat.

In most cases, business was divided between custom slaughtering for retail and wholesale customers and retail sales of fresh meat cuts. Retailing, rather than selling to butchers and other wholesale buyers, has been the part of the business that has shown the most rapid growth over the last few years, according to Linstrom.

Some firms charged up to $10 a head for custom slaughtering, while others had no extra charge—as long as the customer left the hide and byproducts. Cattle hides sell for about $45 per cwt. Byproducts are about 40 percent of the animal's live weight and contribute 5 to 10 percent to packers' gross sales.

On the average, farmers charged slightly more than $4 a head to slaughter a cow or steer — in addition to keeping the hide and byproducts — and 13 cents per pound of carcass weight for processing. Nonfarm firms charged about the same for custom slaughter but around 16 cents per pound for processing.

For hogs, farm firm slaughter charges averaged $6.25 plus byproducts, and processing charges averaged 13 cents per pound. Nonfarm firms charged an average of $9.15 per hog plus byproducts for slaughter and 17 cents per pound of carcass weight for processing.

The Texas producers in the study said they went into the direct marketing business to cut out the "middleman" and, thus, earn a greater profit. In general, they seem to have been successful.

They showed better returns for both steers and hogs compared with sales through conventional outlets. Returns averaged $51 higher per steer and $19 higher per hog for their meat cuts, and that's after figuring in a return to cover the additional capital and management required in such

Producers saved on transportation and selling costs, such as commissions and auction fees. They also gained some of the profits normally added in the slaughtering, processing, and retailing stages.

Their retail customers also benefited. Consumers saved 10 to 12 percent off supermarket prices for their meat purchases, Linstrom says. Eight beef and pork cuts average $1.95 per pound when retailed at farmer-operated businesses, $1.98 at the nonfarm custom slaughter firms, and $2.21 at butcher stores and supermarkets.

The integrated farmer operations sold mostly ungraded beef comparable to USDA Good. Supermarkets and specialty meat stores sold USDA Choice beef. The quality of pork was about the same for all types of businesses.

"This case study suggests that direct marketing of livestock and livestock products can often be profitable for small and part-time farmers and for consumers as well," Linstrom says.

That's no ordinary cat!

MANHEIM — "That's no ordinary cat!"

The first time that Nevin Greiner suspected something out of the ordinary had moved onto the family farm just north of Manheim, Lancaster County, was when he saw a flash of fur dash in front of the car, streaking from one cornfield to another.

About two weeks and a few dozen ducks and chicken victims later his suspicions were confirmed.

It surely was no ordinary cat. It was an honest-to-goodness bobcat — an extremely rare wildlife visitor to Lancaster County, where farmers worry more about the pressures of urban sprawl than the ravages of Mother Nature's wildlife marauders.

A member of the endangered species list for Pennsylvania, the relatively few bobcat left in the state are confined to the wilds of the northern tier counties. And, they're seldom seen even there. This makes the local sighting and successful capture all the more unusual.

"My fiancée and I first saw it on a Sunday afternoon in early July," Greiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Greiner, said.

"It was as fast as lightning and we saw it only briefly. It was the biggest cat I ever saw. Everybody told us we were crazy."

Since bobcats, in addition to being rare, are nocturnal by nature and very leery of man, an afternoon sighting would be hard to believe. The initial sighting was along Hernley Road, just north of Hernley Mennonite Church. The Lester Greiner land lies on both sides of Rt. 72, about a mile north of Manheim.

Then, older brother, Calvin, saw something after a chicken one evening. Again, it was just a furry blur.

But Nevin started losing ducks and chickens.

"Last year, I had the ducks on the pond and lost some to snapping turtles and fox," he said.

"So, this year, I cooped them up. But the cat got in and put me out of the duck business real fast."

In all, the bobcat killed some 45 ducks and about 20 range chickens.

"At the time, I didn't know what it was, so we put out some traps," Greiner said.

He thought it was likely a raccoon and placed the traps near the small poultry house. On a Saturday two weeks after the initial sighting, the Muscovy-moocher was caught.

"It was quite an experience," Greiner said.

"It was in good shape and not hurt. Seeing that cat was worth more than the ducks and chickens put together."

After a tarp was thrown over it, the cat calmed down and Greiner was able to get it into a cage. It was Following capture, this year-old bobcat — an extremely rare wildlife visitor to Lancaster County — was caged and turned over to Pennsylvania Game Commission. It has been transported upstate and released in the wilds of Clearfield County.

"They didn't believe it, either," Greiner explained.

"It was kinda dark in the granary, but when the cat saw the pole with noose, it gave out a growl."

The Deputy Game Protector changed his mind quickly.

"That sure is no ordinary cat," he exclaimed.

It turned out to be a female bobcat a little over a year old, weighing about 12 pounds. Full-grown females can run 15 pounds or more.

It had the black bobbed tail, typical rusty markings and the start of the tufts of hair on the cheeks. But the ears weren't black-tipped yet.

The Game Commission has transported the Lancaster County visitor to more natural environs. It was turned loose in the wilds of Clearfield County, where it hopefully will locate a mate and lose its taste for ducks and chickens.

Meanwhile, Nevin Greiner is getting back to the more normal livestock endeavors of finishing hogs and cattle and raising broilers for the live market in New York.

Since his Muscovy breeders were on the home farm and spared, he'll be getting back in the duck business, too.

And, no more excitement until next month when he and Bonnie Levy, who has served as vo-ag instructor at Brownstown Vo-Tech, plan to get married.

While it's unique for a bobcat in Lancaster County, isn't it more unusual for such a young one to range so far from its natural habitat?

It probably is, according to Game protectors.

So, the next time you hear those strange noises at night in the woods or meadow, they could be coming from brothers or sisters or even parents of the recent Greiner visitor.

Purina BIO-MITTENT™ Lighting Program

The Bio-Mittent™ Lighting Program

The Purina® Bio-Mittent Lighting Program is a unique lighting program for pullets and layers which saves energy and money without adversely affecting growth or egg production. It supplies pullets and layers with 15 minutes of light and 45 minutes of darkness each hour they receive light under a standard lighting program. This intermittent lighting program resulted from the discovery that chickens will grow and produce well when supplied 15 minutes of light per hour instead of 60 minutes.

Why Bio-Mittent Lighting Works

Bio-Mittent Lighting works because short periods of light repeated often are interpreted by the chicken as constant light. The chicken's hormonal reproductive control system does not recognize darkness unless she is without light over 3 hours. Thus, the dark periods are never perceived as such by the hen's system. For Bio-Mittent Lighting to provide maximum benefits, light tight housing is required. In non-light tight houses, electrical savings are realized but feed savings are slightly less. In open-sided housing, the advantage is only electrical savings. However, this still can be significant.

Bio-Mittent Lighting for Pullets

The function of a pullet lighting program is to control sexual maturity. As with a standard lighting program, on the Bio-Mittent Lighting program pullets receive constant light from 1-14 days of age. Afterwards, until 20 weeks of age, the Bio-Mittent Lighting Program is implemented. The intermittent pattern of 15 minutes light/45 minutes darkness per light hour is used during the time lights are normally used.

Bio-Mittent Lighting for Layers

When the hours of light are increased to stimulate onset of lay, constant light should be initiated and continued through 36 weeks of age. At which time, layers can gradually be phased onto Bio-Mittent Lighting. Intermittent lighting is continued throughout the laying cycle and can be used in the second cycle with comparable savings, if the flock is molted.

*Tests were conducted at Purina Research Farm with commercial White Leghorn strains of hens lighted 15 hours per 24 hour day.

**Number of minutes of light/number of minutes of dark per light hour. Birds were grown under the same lighting regimes as pullets using 8 light hours per 24-hour day. At 20 weeks, lights were increased to constant light for 13 hours and at 24 weeks to constant light for 14 hours. At 28 to 36 weeks, 45 patterns of designated light sequences were used.
